New-Direction's Cameo Cow Wins Grand At Spring Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An aged cow owned by New Direction Holsteins in Middletown was named senior and grand champion of the 44th Pennsylvania Holstein State Spring Show March 28 at the State Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Judge for the show was Callum McKinven, of Melbourne, Quebec.

Owned and bred by Dr. Alan McCauley, who owns New-Direction Holsteins along with wife Sandy and son Tom McCauley, New-Direction Jet Cameo has been showing well for them for several years at different sanctioned events.

The best bred and owned animal of the open division show, born May 6, 1989, the Bridon Astro Jet daughter had been entered in the 125,000-pound milk production class, but was moved to the aged cow class where she edged out the

Dairy Conference Looks At Past, Future

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

PHILADELPHIA - The Northeast Dairy Conference held downtown in the big city commenced with some reminiscing and a look forward to the challenges in the future of the dairy industry.

Ivo V. Oto, Jr., the former president of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, and now a director of Land O' Lakes (the merger of the two cooperatives became effective Tuesday) opened the program with a look back.

"About 80 years ago and three blocks from where I am now standing, a group of dairy farmers met to discuss the milk marketing situation of their time," Oto said. "They concluded that production of milk, in and of itself, would not guarantee them a livelihood. Milk marketing and higher prices meant that the farmer had to travel past the farm gate and follow the milk to market. Those farmers formed Inter-State Milk Producers' Association, that later joined Lehigh Valley Dairies to become the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

Daylight-Saving Starts Sunday

It's daylight-saving time again. Officially, at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, April 6, the change is made. To be sure you are on time, set your clock one hour ahead Saturday night before you go to bed. Farmers with livestock, especially dairymen, will want to make special adjustments to not disrupt feeding and milking schedules.

Water, Rocks, Bottles Pose Berks Conservation Farm Challenges

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) — What are some of the problems that concern a conservation farmer?

A list could include handling excessive water on the farm. . . limestone rocks in the fields that can wreak havoc on equipment. . . cans and bottles thrown haphazardly in a waterway that could be chopped up and eaten by cows along with the forage. . . .

Those are some of the challenges faced by dairyman Roland Feeg in Womelsdorf. On Wednesday this week, Feeg, who will be honored Monday night as Berks County Conservation Farmer of the Year, spoke to Lancaster Farming about the challenges he and other farmers face in the '90s.

"I'm not really worthy of this honor," Feeg indicated. "There are lot of other people involved. I'm not a fellow who wants public ity. I just did what needed to be done."

Before speaking about the benefits of conservation, Feeg pointed out that others need to be recognized for putting extensive conservation renovations in place on the farm.

Sen. Specter Calls For Milk Production Price

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's U.S. Sen. Arlen Specter on Tuesday announced that he is urging U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman to establish a minimum milk price to farmers that provides for the cost of production.

The announcement was made at the Catalpa Dairy Farm owned by Ray and Dale Kennedy, in lower Dauphin County near the border with Lancaster County, during a last-minute public news conference organized by Specter's staff.

Though not talking in specifics, Specter told the group gathered in the cow barn (because of strong winds and cold temperatures) that he has requested that Secretary Glickman use his emergency authority to raise the basic price of milk to farmers.

The milk pricing problem has been ongoing.

While cow feed prices skyrocketed last year, driving up prices to dairy farmers and driving down cull cow prices (flooding the beef market), the price of milk had been up to near record levels also, though the increase in milk price lagged by weeks compared to feed prices paid by farmers.

Then, last fall, milk prices plummeted — almost $4 — primarily because the price of cheese at the National Cheese Exchange in Green Bay, Wisconsin, dropped significantly.

The price of cheese at the NCE

MARCH 28, 1997

Prices were unchanged to higher for whites and whole, and unchanged on the balance. The market tone was steady to firm. Demand was not usually better than moderate, and plants focused on filling previous orders. Breaking stock supplies were short to adequate as breakers continued to compete with strong shell egg markets, and some plants worked reduced schedules. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the East for the week ending March 22, 1997 were 7% less than last week, and unchanged from last year.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
APRIL 2, 1997

Wheat bids continued lower, today, pressured by lack of export sales, good crop conditions in winter wheat areas, and favorable growing weather. Corn bids fell moderately lower after five consecutive days of higher trends. Profit taking on the board and technical corrections were the major declining factors. Soybean bids continued to climb sharply higher due to news of a reduction in Brazil's crop size and some concerns over a Brazilian stevedore port strike. Wheat 2 to 8 cents lower. Corn 1 to 6 cents lower. Sorghum 8 to 10 cents lower. Soybeans 6 to 10 cents higher. U.S. Export Sales: Purchaser Commodity Tonnage Del date Japan Corn 111,760 Aug Totals: Corn 111,760 tonnes. The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

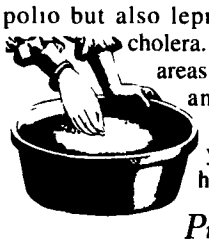
APRIL 7-13, 1997

NEW MOON, APRIL 7.

WHO?

This week begins with World Health Day, started in 1948 by who else but the World Health Organization (WHO). First founded as a specialized agency of the United Nations (although not all its members had to belong to the United Nations), WHO has had remarkable success in checking global outbreaks of not only polio but also leprosy, tuberculosis, malaria, and cholera. Much of its work has been in the areas of prevention, improved sanitation and hygiene, and more-effective quarantine precautions. So go wash your hands and give a salute to health and WHO.



Prevention is better than cure; or forecast is better than work-hard.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Olive oil is a good skin cleanser for grease, tar, and grimy dirt. Add sugar as an abrasive, if necessary, then rinse.

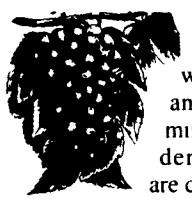
CARROTS WITH GRAPES



- 2 pounds fresh carrots
- 2 teaspoons dried basil
- 1 clove garlic
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter
- 1 teaspoon dried chervil
- 1/4 teaspoon celery salt
- 2 cups seedless white grapes, halved
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

Clean carrots and cut into julienne strips In a saucepan, combine carrots, basil, and garlic, add water to cover, and cook about 20 minutes or until tender While carrots are cooking, melt butter in a saucepan and add chervil and celery salt When carrots are cooked, drain, discard garlic Add carrots and grapes to butter, stir to coat, and heat just until grapes are warm Serve as a side dish with chicken or turkey

Makes 12 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If the sky looks curtly, it will rain within three days.

"After the rain cometh the fair weather."
- Aesop

Rain is something that makes flowers grow and taxicabs disappear.

A soft dropping April brings milk to cows and sheep.

A cold April the barn will fill.

OPINION

Thank God For Water

A new report released this week by a leading international research organization warns that water scarcity will become one of the world's main obstacles to feeding the growing population unless urgently needed policy reforms are made. The report by the International Food Policy Research Institute states that water supplies are dwindling in country after country because of wasteful water use, ground water depletion, and pollution, while demand for water is increasing.

Between 1950 and 1990, water use increased by more than 100 percent in North and South America. In Africa the use increase was more than 300 percent and in Europe by almost 500 percent.

Man's concern for water resources is nothing new, especially as it relates to agricultural water use. In the environmental book entitled "Rich Land, Poor Land," published in 1936, author Stuart Chase writes: "The individual farmer is very important in head water strategy; his cooperation is essential. From raindrop to river mouth, two principles are paramount: hold the water! Release it slowly, using every gallon as it comes down. Wherever possible, hold water in the soil and natural reservoirs rather than by costly dams.

Modern conservation practices have their start in the early part of American history. Washington and Jefferson are credited with being good farmers and good conservationists because they checked erosion by contour plowing. Today, many farmers have switched to no-til or minimum-til farming. and conservation practices on erodable land is very common.

But often it is hard for farmers in the rainfall rich areas of Pennsylvania and neighboring states to comprehend what it is like to have polluted underground water supplies and massive amounts of untreated sewage carried down the local rivers and streams.

We just want to remind everyone again that our water supply is our most valuable natural resource. Let's not let so much of it go down the drain unused. Let's keep our livestock manure runoff out of our streams. Let's thank God for the blessings of water given to us.

Now Is The Time

To Evaluate Alfalfa Fields

This winter had a high potential for damage to alfalfa fields, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent.

Extremely cold weather followed by mild weather may have severely weaken alfalfa fields which survived last summer's stresses of too much water and severe disease pressure. Any stress helps to reduce stands and yields but when several stresses are stacked one on the top of another, the survival rate of plants may be extremely low.

Alfalfa growers need to evaluate alfalfa fields very closely this spring to determine which fields will be able to produce acceptable yields and which fields should be rotated to another crop. With a shortage of alfalfa, annual forage crops may be a very important crop this year.

If annual forage crops are planted this spring, they could produce higher yields of forage than maintaining poor alfalfa stands which have gone by the wayside.

To Check Alfalfa Fields

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent, states all alfalfa fields should be checked now to determine stand quality.

You need to determine the number of plants per square foot and the number of healthy plants per square foot. Also, you need to be looking for signs of crown damage due to heaving, compaction, insects or being frosted after starting to grow this spring.

Heaving is the most common and easiest type of damage to observe in alfalfa. Heaving pushes the root upward and out of the ground. Wet soils which alternately freeze and thaw increase the amount of heaving.

Crowns should be checked for their ability to survive. Healthy crowns are solid and white in color internally. Crowns which are starting to turn brown may not survive the growing season.

When more than 50 percent of the root tissue is discolored, chances of survival are very minimal. Remember, when a hay field fails in July, it is too late to plant to another crop to replace the feed lost. Several scouting trips over questionable fields is essential.

To Count Alfalfa Plants

In view of past summer's wetness and this open winter, Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent, encourages every alfalfa grower to count the number of plants growing per square foot now.

How many plants are enough plants to warrant keeping the field for another growing season? Fields which are one year old should have between 30 and 40 healthy plants per square foot if they are to continue producing for more than this season. Two-year-old fields should have 12 to 20 healthy plants per square foot. Any field with less than five healthy plants per square foot should be planted to another crop.

The key is the number of healthy plants. Healthy plants which are simply pushed out of the ground may survive this summer and produce adequate yields providing other stresses are kept to a minimum. Seldom do heaved plants survive a second winter and growing season. Fields which show a lot of injury, but still have a sufficient number of plants, should be managed very carefully this year.

University researches suggest fields in this condition should be allowed to reach mid bloom or more before making the first cutting. Controlling insects and other stresses will be very important in the fields.

FINDING YOUR KEYS
April 6, 1997
Background Scripture:
Revelation 1
Devotional Reading:
Revelation 21:1-3

I had an interesting dream the other evening. I was working on a project with a friend of mine, but somewhere along the line in my dream my friend had become, without my realizing it at once, a pet cat that I once had.

Most dreams are like that fuzzy and ever-changing. That realization may help you when you read the Book of Revelation, because John's visions are not too unlike our dreams — the images and pictures constantly changing, hard to visualize.

Visions and dreams are very much alike in how they appear to us and in the Old Testament the same Hebrew word is usually used for 'dreams' and 'night visions.' In both the Old and New Testaments dreams are an important means by which God reveals himself to people. Unfortunately, today most of us don't take dreams, visions and voices very seriously. And, that too, makes it more difficult for us to understand Revelation.

LISTENING

In the play, The Lark, the Dauphin of France complains to Joan of Arc because the visions come to her, a peasant girl, rather than to him, the successor to the throne of France. "Why don't they speak to me?" he demands and she replies, "They do speak to you, but you don't listen."

Like the Dauphin, we may not receive revelation from God because we do not listen for his voice. To a large degree we've been educated to disbelieve or rationalize the messages that come from within ourselves. I am quite convinced that God has more to say to us then we ever heard, but the reason is not that he does not try.

About 10 years ago my wife Valere and I visited the island of Patmos, a small Greek island just off the coast of Turkey. Our purpose was to visit the shrine of the Revelation, a church marking the place in which John experienced the visions and voices of which the Book of Revelation was composed when he was, as he writes, "in the Spirit on the Lords day" (1:10).

"In the Spirit" means that he was in an ecstatic mystical state or what we might call today an 'altered state of consciousness.' He was conscious, but not in the usual sense of the word — something or someone in an unusual way. But just because it is not our normal or usual experience doesn't mean that it has no message for us. The Book of Revelation has much to reveal to us, if we persevere and permit it to do so.

In this very first chapter of the book there is what I see as a message of cosmic continuity. In verse 8 John writes, "I am the Alpha and the Omega," says the Lord God, who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty." In verse 17 John writes again: "But he laid his right hand upon me, saying, "Fear not, I am the first and the last, and the living one; I died, and behold I am alive for evermore, and I have the keys of Death and Hades."

Sometimes, when I am in the grip of perplexity or pain, I need to be reminded that I am in the hands of the one who is the beginning and ending of all things, someone who has died but is yet "alive evermore," someone who holds the key of Death and Hades. Stuck momentarily in the immediacy of a particular time, place and situation, I can find the keys that help me to realize that I am linked with the Eternal, Infinite God.

(In October, Rev. & Mrs. Althouse will lead a 14-day tour to Turkey to trace the footsteps of Paul and John. For information, write: 4412 Shenandoah Ave., Dallas, TX 75205).

MMI Releases Earnings

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio — Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI) recently announced the allocation to members of $6 million in patronage earnings for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1996.

In a letter to members, Board Chairman Herman Brubaker announced the allocation and cash distribution. Brubaker said the total patronage amounts to approximately 11 cents per hundredweight on milk marketed by members through MMI for the fiscal period ending June 30, 1996. In addition, he said, $3.8 million in capital retains is being allocated to members.

In the same letter, Executive Vice President and CEO Don Schriver reported to members on the $12.5 million investment in equipment and facilities at MMI's Farmers Cheese plant in New Wilmington, Pa.

Schriver said, "The project will create products targeted especially for the export market." He added that a specialty products dryer for MMI's Dairy Farm Products facility in New Bremen, Ohio, is a nearly $2 million investment.

"The dryer provides the capability to process new value-added formulations and food ingredients for niche markets," Schriver said.

Brubaker said, "The vision of MMI's member investment program is to grow member returns. Cutting-edge operations gives MMI the ability to provide new and highly-specialized food products for a world market. These efforts add value to member milk."

Headquartered in Strongsville, Ohio, MMI is the third largest dairy cooperative and the 11th largest dairy food company in the U.S. In the fiscal year 1996, MMI marketed and processed more than 7 billion pounds of milk. MMI represents dairy farm families in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Vermont, West Virginia and Delaware.

CSCE To Launch BFP Milk Futures On April 8

NEW YORK, NY — On April 8, 1997, the Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange, Inc. (CSCE) will launch a new BFP milk futures contract based on the Basic Formula Price (BFP) for milk, the dairy industry's benchmark for milk pricing. Trading in BFP milk futures will commence with the June 1997 futures contract. Trading in BFP milk options will begin on April 15, 1997. The CSCE received Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) approval of these new markets on February 27, 1997.

"The BFP milk futures contract has all the necessary ingredients for success," said CSCE President James J. Bowe. "This contract is based on a pricing mechanism used by approximately 90% of the United States dairy industry and it solves the problems of basis exposure and physical delivery issues. The Exchange has been working with the dairy industry for years to develop markets that will allow them to manage their risks; this new contract is the answer."

The Exchange's BFP milk contract will be cash settled against the BFP for milk, which is announced monthly by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). The BFP milk futures contract calls for a contract size of 1,000 times the BFP for milk (equivalent to 100,000 pounds of milk). Trading hours are 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. New York time and the price quotation is in dollars and cents per hundredweight (cwt). Contract months are February, April, June, August, October and December; ticker symbol is MJ.

"I want to commend the Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange for working to enhance risk management opportunities for dairy producers and processors," said CFTC Commissioner David Spears.

The CSCE introduced its first dairy products in 1993, with the launch of cheddar cheese and nonfat dry milk futures and options. The Exchange added milk futures and options contracts in 1995 and butter futures and options in 1996.

Dairy Conference

"Yesterday, a son of one of the charter members of Inter-State served his last day as president of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative. This morning a director of Land O'Lakes welcomes you to this conference.

The goals of the former Inter-State were to bargain with milk dealers for higher prices and to guarantee payment for all member milk. Forming a bargaining cooperative was a big step from that farm gate for many of those farmers."

Like this former big step, Oto said the most recent merger of cooperatives was again another big step from the farm gate.

With the theme of "Integrated Dairy Marketing: From Cow to Consumer", various speakers moved the discussion forward.

Thomas Gallagher, CEO, Dairy Management, Inc., presented ideas on how DMI is bringing the marketing chain together. He showed figures to prove that commercial disappearance of dairy products increased after the check-off moneys started rolling in 1983. The check-off program unified, focused, leveraged and integrated dairy marketing and made it accountable.

Gallagher gave the definition of integrated marketing as "The process of managing all sources of information about a project/service to which a consumer prospect or stakeholder is exposed, which behavior moves them toward a sale and/or relationship and maintains consumer/stakeholder loyalty."

Robert Yonkers, Penn State, said factors that influence the future of the dairy business include external factors such as the federal budget and the economic philosophy of that government. Freer trade and a global industry outlook are both part of the business climate of the future.

"Dairymen need to think for themselves as business people and operate in a business environment," Yonkers said. "Some farmers are trying to get government back in the picture and others are moving toward more of a marketing orientation."

Yonkers listed cost control, productivity increases, expansion, and the restructure of resources and farm size as ways to make the dairy business more profitable. He said there must be more management specialization and labor specialization by farm enterprise. And capital investments must pay.

"You need to focus on planning your business (dairy) around market opportunities instead of trying to change the market to meet your production interests," Yonkers said.

Robert Herrmann, Penn State, said consumer tastes, preferences and beliefs follows a more fragmented and variable food marketing plan. He listed such factors as differences in income, economic pressures on the middle class, and a growing older population.

In the '20's we had the youth revolution; in the '30's the yuppies; in the '40's the exercise craze, and the '50's leisure activities became the overriding factor in marketing. Now we are looking forward to the year 2011 when the first baby boomers turn 65.

Today, household size is smaller, and the purchasing power of the average household has not increased much in recent years. But more people are eating out and eating meals prepared away and taken home.

But Herrmann believes people in marketing have been over-rating the concerns people have for nutrition. He said the typical questions presented in nutrition surveys assumes the respondent is concerned about nutrition. But when you ask the question differently, you get a different appearance of what people think.

And of course people are hard to understand. The workout/pig out thinking leaves no real purists in the low fat groups.

On Wednesday the program schedule included a presentation about the new basic formula price futures contract that will start to trade next Tuesday. A news release presenting the facts about this new contract accompanies this article. Dairy officials are looking to the trading of this contract as a gage to follow for what future milk prices will be. The futures contract in milk is just another indication that the dairy industry is rapidly changing from government support to market support prices.

Nearly 200 persons attended this $100 per ticket, two-day conference held in the Sheraton Society Hill Hotel located in the historic district four blocks from the liberty bell.

For the owners of Cathy, it was a chance to see her almost take the spring show grand championship a second time. She was grand champion in 1995.

McKinven said, while giving reasons for his placings in both the class placings and then for senior and grand champion, that the two cows could be interchanged depending upon the judge and the day and what one was looking for.

In the final selection for senior champion he also picked an honorable mention, McCauley's New-Direction Camille, a senior 3-year-old, also bred and owned by McCauley.

After thanking the sizeable audience, McKinven said all three animals were beautiful with good ribbing, structure and mammary systems. "It is a real, real close placing," he said.

Premier breeder and exhibitor of the show was Penn-Gate Farm, of Littlestown, owned by Steve and Chris Wood and Bob Gitt. They have earned either or both of those honors several times in recent years.

All six of their animals entered placed within the top five of their classes: one first, two seconds, and one each third, fourth and fifth.

The open division junior champion was a fall calf, Tri-Day Encore Gabby, owned and bred by Matthew Day, of Tri-Day Hoslteins in Shippensburg.

His younger brother David Day showed the youth division junior champion, a summer yearling, Tri-Day Lusty Jo, also an owned and bred animal. The parents of the Day brothers are Curtis and Ann Day.

The best bred and owned cow of the youth division show of the 44th Pa. Holstein Association Spring Show is shown by Jason Morrell.

The senior and grand champion of the youth division was a 4-year-old cow, C Loch-An Brae Sky Notcho, owned by Ronald Hough Jr., of Rebersburg.

The best bred and owned of the youth division was an aged cow, Ebe-Tide SC Jessica, owned by Jason Morrell, of Cochranton.

The turnout for the show and the previous evening's sale was strong, and weather conditions were unusually warm and calm. Attendees for the sale and show came from several states and Canada.

The show was dedicated to J. Arthur Baxter, Dec. 9, 1927-Nov. 20, 1996, who served as president of the Pa. Holstein Association from 1986-1988, and who was elected in the association's Hall of Fame in 1990. He bred and showed cattle under the Garden-Acres prefix.

Showcase Sale

During the previous evening's state Showcase Sale, 62 lots sold for an average of $1,845 for a total of $114,425.

The top selling animal was an Excellent-93 6-year-old cow, Curtis-Haven Profit Lola, consigned by Donald Eaton of Blairsville that sold for $5,200 (it was erroneously reported last week as $5,300) to Donald Eaton and Ernie Keuffner, who is also of Blairsville.

The second-high selling animal was a Dec. 6, 1996 calf consigned by Justin Burdette, of Mercersburg. It sold for $4,500 to T. Green, J. Deibler and J. Conrad of Boalsburg. The calf was out of the Windy-Knoll-View Ultimate Pala cow 94-3E, and Carnation Counselor-ET.

Third highest selling was a calf born Sept. 6, 1996 out of VG-85 Savage-Leigh Lyle CC Dot-ET and sire Pearltome Jackpot-ET that was consigned by Wayne and Cindee Savage of Knoxville, Md., that sold for $3,800 to John Wayne Strowd III of Pittsboro, N.C.

Fourth highest was a December calf ouf of VG-86 Campbell-Run CF Signe and sire Pearltome Jackpot-ET that was consigned by Cambell-Run Farms in Ford City and sold to Alex Claypoole, of Worthington for $3,600.

The fifth highest selling lot was

Agriculture Secretary Addresses Frederick Farmers

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WALKERSVILLE, Md. — Lewis Riley, Maryland Secretary of Agriculture, delivered an upbeat, informative message to state farmers recently during an appearance in Walkersville. "Frederick County: Farming in the Future," a conference on ag land preservation and economic development, drew approximately 100 to the fire hall to hear Riley and others speak. The conference was sponsored by the Fredercik County Chamber of Commerce, the Agrifuture Roundtable, and the county Farm Bureau.

Riley highlighted legislative initiatives contained in Governor Parris Glendening's 1997 "Smart Growth/Neighborhood Conservation" plan. The governor is proposing legislation that will channel money into revitalizing existing communities and controlling the sprawl that currently threatens Maryland's rural and agricultural areas.

Riley patted Maryland on the back for its efforts in land preservation, saying, "We have the number one program in the country in Maryland of the sixteen states that have programs. One hundred twenty-eight thousand acres have been permanently preserved. Almost ten thousand acres in Frederick County have been permanently preserved. That's 4th or 5th in the state." Carroll County, bordering Frederick, has the most acres preserved through the farmland preservation program.

Riley stressed the importance of the Rural Legacy Program, part of Governor Parris Glendening's 1997 legislative package, in acquiring conservation easements for large tracts of agricultural land. The land eligible for the program lies in buffer zones between rural and urban areas which are threatened by encroaching development. He explained the program redirects existing state funds, and functions in addition to, and not in place of, the Ag Land Preservation Program. The program will commit almost 170 thousand dollars, leveraged by existing money, to preserve 90,000 acres of farm and forest land in the next five years. "It's a new, innovative program that will enhance what we already have going in Maryland," the Secretary emphasized.

The Maryland Right To Farm Law passed in the Senate, Riley said, "But in the House they're having some problems with it." The bill goes to the House this week. Secretary Riley himself sponsored the state's first right to farm bill in 1980. The 1997 proposal is a stronger version of the existing law protecting farmers from nuisance lawsuits. First, it is expected to include what Riley referred to as "... the privilege of post-harvest activities," specifically, on-the-farm activities related to the preparation and processing of farm products for sale. Second, the definition of agriculture will be expanded to include aquaculture and forestry. Finally, the language in the existing law will be changed to waive the one year waiting period for a new farm or practice to be protected from nuisance suits. As long as Best Management Practices are being used, the farmer will be protected from the day he starts farming or implements a new practice.

He talked on the Fairness in Milk Marketing Act, HB 504 and SB 752, saying it would have leveled the playing field among Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. The bill would have established a fair market for the Maryland dairy industry by establishing a minimum milk pricing schedule. Such programs are currently in effect in both Pennsylvania and Virginia, give fluid milk producers in those states an unfair advantage. They can sell surplus milk at lower prices in Maryland. The influx of out of state milk makes it hard for the co-ops to negotiate better prices for producers in Maryland. The act would have removed that competitive edge Pennsylvania and Virgnia now maintain. The Act, SB 752 and HB 504, failed in both the House and Senate. It got killed in committee in the Senate March 10th. In the House it failed 54-76 when it got to the third reader on March 20th.

"We need to recognize the most best preservation program in the world is a successful farming operation. If that farmer is making a profit, he's not going to sell out. We need to assist the landowner. That land is their value. If we do something to decrease the value of that land, we're talking away the farmer's equity. That's the beauty of the Rural Legacy program; it's voluntary, and there's compensation — a negotiated figure. You don't have to sell. The sad thing in agriculture is that most of these farmers would have more money in their pocket if they went out and sold the farm. We don't want to encourage that," Riley said of the State's position.

Other speakers at the conference included Ron Young, a former Mayor of Frederick for 26 years who is now Smart Growth Coordinator at the MD State planning office, Sandy Hillyer, an attorney who spoke on the effects of sprawl, and Philip Gottwal, ag marketing specialist with the state. Three panel discussions addressed "Farming Today," "Community Reaction" to cost of community services, and "Farming Options in the Future."

Sen. Specter Calls

has been used by the USDA as a major factor in determining the Basic Formula Price (BFP) of milk. The BFP sets a standard from which farmers are paid for their milk. The BFP replaced the Wisconsin-Minnesota price series that had been used to calculate farmer milk prices.

Based on findings by his staff, Specter said the price of cheese reported at the NCE was 16 cents too low and that correlated to a $1.60 per hundredweight price difference in the price of milk.

Mostly just shying away from outright accusations of collusion by the major cheese manufacturers involved with the NCE, a number of organizations and individuals have suggested strongly that the cheese price at the NCE was made artificially lower than what it should have been by cheese manufacturers dumping product on the market and buying it back at an apparent loss.

That apparent loss was on what amounts to less than 2 percent of the cheese manufactured in the United States, and it dropped the price of milk dramatically.

Up unitl the NCE price drop, dairy producers were receiving prices around $16 per hundredweight.

Cheese manufacturers and other dairy processors purchase milk from farmers in a delayed payment system — the farmer pays to have the milk hauled to the processor and then, at the end of the month, the processor pays the farmer based on what the USDA determines is a fair price.

The benefit to cheese manufacturers to take an apparent loss by selling cheese and purchasing it back at a lower price is apparent — the amount of cheese sold at a loss is minor compared to the profits the companies could enjoy by purchasing milk at much lower prices.

While the federal Legislature approved the 1996 Farm Bill with the intent of abandoning government price supports and price-setting, the BFP was and is retained as a pricing tool until it is eventually phased out.

In the meantime, some farmers groups had been calling for a different method of determining milk price — one that guarantees a break-even return on the investment cost of production.

However, every dairy farm operates with a different cost of production. According to a founder and president of a 2-year-old dairy farmer organization, the cost of production was calculated at $17 per cwt.

Others have reported being able to produce milk for under $11 per cwt.

Instead of that type of cost-of-production formula, Sen. Specter said that he favors abandoning the NCE in favor of using a different testing system of the cheese market.

Though calling for including production costs in the formula for farmer milk prices, Specter said Tuesday that he doesn't know how a price of production could be determined. "We're looking into that," he said.

Since the nationwide outcry to the price of cheese at the NCE in Green Bay, Wis., and calls for an anti-trust investigation, the organizers of the NCE have since dropped the Green Bay trading operation and received permission to move it to the Chicago Board of Trade, where it can receive federal oversight and potentially additional buyers.

Specter said Tuesday that he believed that calls for anti-trust investigations did pressure the NCE to move its activities from Green Bay to the CBT.

He also noted that many agricultural processing industries — such as commercial slaughter and meat packing businesses — are very close to needing scrutiny for anti-trust activities.

"I think the Department of Justice needs to look at (anti-trust among United States agricultural processors)," Specter said.

Specter said Tuesday that he intends to introduce legislation to get the cost of production included in the BFP and criticized Secretary Glickman for not acting quickly enough to use his emergency authority to make a correction.

However, while the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture does have such authority, it can not be used without first holding public hearings and receiving public testimony. Secretary Glickman began a public call for comment on the BFP and milk pricing in late January and set the public testimony period to end March 31.

It can be assumed that it would take a couple of weeks to compile and review the testimony before coming to a specific decision as to what is to be done.

Specter said his staff submitted its research to Glickman, but, as of April 1, nothing was yet done.

From the standpoint of the agriculture secretary, testimony from Specter must be considered equally with that of all citizens.

Though the headquarters of two of the state's main agricultural organizations — the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and the State Grange — were not made aware of Tuesday's meeting, about 35 people attended the event, some indicating their representation of those farm organizations.

Bob Junk, of the Pennsylvania Farmer's Union was present, though he also noted that notice was made to him almost too

He said he considered the gist of Sen. Specter's comments positive, but was not convinced that any remedy would be near to hand as a result.

"There were two things (that Specter said)," Junk said, "legislation to introduce the cost of production within the BFP, and we appreciate the senator for recognizing the cost of production as a factor in establishing the BFP; also the current BFP is not truly reflecting the true manufacture price of cheese on a national basis."

Junk said that National Farmers Union has launched a national campaign to change the BFP and also to get federal oversight of the NCE.

He said that while its move to the CBT is a "positive note, because now it will be overseen by (federal government), "There will still be the same basic players. It's not going to change the players and they are still going to be able to have trading against interest.

"That's where we fell we got into trouble, allowing the same people to be buyer and seller of the product. There is still the possibility of manipulating the true value of the product."

Junk said the whole issue raises the question about the propriety of having the milk price set by market speculators.

He said that having a milk price set by the government that reflects that actual ability of the farmer to purchase feed to make that milk would be closer to a cost-of-production.

If true supply and demand would be allowed to determine the price of commodities, rather than high stakes speculation and market manipulation, that would be closer to a cost of production.

Junk said that while not worked out in detail, it would seem reasonable to set a base price on the amount of milk a producer would have to sell in order to buy enough feed to make that milk.

That, he said, would better reflect the cost of production, and also enable the dairy farmer to receive more for his milk when feed supplies are tight (in the spring) and he needs that income for planting to raise more feed.

The meeting on Tuesday was a followup to a Feb.10 meeting in Scranton held by Specter, Sen. Santorum, and at which Ag Secretary Glickman attended at the request of Pennsylvania's federal legislative delegation.

That February meeting was obstensibly called because of a call for a milk strike by a contingent of dairy producers in northern Pennsylvania, and because of criticizms of the USDA's use of the NCE.

Arden Tewksbury, manager and founder of a northeast Pennsylvania organization called the Progressive Agriculture Organization (ProAg), had been involved in calling for the milk strike, as well as had been a 2-year-old dairy producer organization called the Pennsylvania Milk Producers Association.

As a result of the Scranton meeting, the organization leaders said membership elected to postpone the milk dumping for at least three weeks.

According to Louise Rinker, with ProAg, Tewksbury was unable to attend Tuesday's meeting because of a severe wind and snow storm that paralyzed the northeastern portion of Pennsylvania and closed several interstate highways.

She said that Tewksbury's phone lines were down for some time, and he didn't return a Thursday phone call to inquire about the fate of the milk dumping protest.

Carroll County Celebrates Ag Day

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

ELDERSBURG, Md. — Carroll County farm groups wanted to introduce their urban neighbors to agriculture. So they brought a little bit of the country to town — to the mall, that is. And it made for a memorable day for everyone involved.

"Carroll County Agriculture — Growing Better Everyday Together" was the theme for this year's ag day at the mall. This was the 10th anniversary of the successful program designed to enhance city and suburban dwellers understanding of agriculture. The program is thoughtfully designed to get the message across that urban and rural communities share common problems, needs, and interests. It took place at Carrolltown Mall.

Eye-catching, colorful displays offered mall-goers information on everything from the benefits of ethanol to cooking with turkey. The University of Maryland cooperative extension service displayed a variety of bulletins. County 4-H and FFA clubs were well represented, too, as were dairy, grain, and beef producers, conservation districts, farm bureau, and the equestiran community.

The Carroll County Farm Bureau's interactive farm display was a huge hit with the children. They couldn't resist digging in up to the elbows at the oversized sandbox brimming with shelled corn and a full line of shiny toy farm equipment. "I want to drive a tractor just like this one!" was one youngster's comment.

Bryan Harris, nutrient management consultant with the Carroll County extension service, talked on lawnmower safety. The "Hodgepodge Portable Petting Zoo," owned and operated by Beth Stambaugh of Westminster made an appearance. There was a decorated cake contest and a homemade ice cream churnoff. And Barbie Green, 1996 Carroll County Farm Queen, was on hand to greet visitors to the display area.

A children's pedal tractor pull sponsored by the Central MD Antique Tractor Club sent boys and girls huffing and puffing down the mall corridor on a miniature tractor complete with sled. Sarah Kasper took home top honors in the 5 and 6 year old class, Brian Rasche won the 7 and 8 year old class, and Taylor Barnes took first place for the 9 and 10 year olds. Wayne T. Shankle of Jefferson, Maryland served as Master of

A coloring contest offered youngsters the opportunity to get creative in coloring a farm scene. First, second, and third place contest winners in that order included: 3-4 year olds: Heather Schmidt, Brittany Hill, and Jamie Williams; 5-7 year olds: Jennifer Hill, Joey Sutton, and Doug Bafford; 8-12 year olds: Kerry Uhler, Linda Chaffman, and Samantha Nickey.

In the ice cream churnoff, first place went to the Carroll County Farm Bureau for their cherry vanilla. Team members were Jim Knill, Donald Maring, Glenn Shirley, Bill Rasche, and Bill Harrison. Second place winners were the North Carroll FFA Ice Cream Makers with their vanilla Reese's Pieces ice cream. Team members were Paul Kraft, Bob Niner, Tim Cole, and Colin O'Meara. Third place winners were the Carroll County Pomona Grange with their honeymoon ice cream. Team members were Chuck Harlow, Pam Harlow, Blair Pletcher, Herb Pletcher, and Sue Leister. Judging the churnoff was Myron Wilhide, President of the Maryland Dairy Industry Association; Sarah Bedgar, Maryland Dairy Princess; and Denise Frebertshauser, Extension Faculty Assistant in 4-H for Carroll County.

The decorated cake contest celebrated the 10th anniversary of ag days at the mall. First place cake honors to the Carroll County Equestrian Council, second place to the Hoofbeat 4-H Saddle club, and third place to the Carroll County Extension Service.

Sponsors for ag days at the mall were: Carroll County Farm Bureau, MD Grain Producers Utilization Board, Carrll County DHIA, Carroll County Family and Community Education, Carroll County Forest Conservancy District Board, Carroll County 4-H Outdoor Fun Club, Carroll County Pomona Grange #2, and Carroll County Sportsmen's Association.

Farm Manager
Marburger Dairy Inc.

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — George Cudoc Jr., farm manager at Marburger Dairy Inc. in Butler County, since October 1995 started working with test results of his herd's milk urea nitrogen levels to help adjust feeding levels of nitrogen in order to save on costs.

He has found that by using the MUN tests, he has been able to save $8,000 per year in feed nitrogen and also has been able to reduce his culling rate from 35 percent to 18 percent.

This is his story, based on real experience. It reflects reports on MUN given by University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine's New Bolton Center researcher Dr. James Ferguson at the 1996 Pa.DHIA state meeting.

Last week, we reported that Cudoc uses two reports frequently — his somatic cell count (SCC) report and his MUN report.

By evaluating his herd's performance against those test data, he was able to see trends between milk production and MUN levels.

MUN Technology Can Help Profits

Generally, he found that milk production decreased as MUN levels increased and that production increased as MUN decreased.

The question then, is how to use MUN values and production levels.

MUN values and production levels surely have a common link. The link, George believes, is made by looking at what ration components tend to have the largest impact on MUN values.

The ration components are protein and carbohydrates. More specifically, we must look at what happens in the rumen itself.

Chart two looks at rations fed over the same time period as the previous production records.

George decided to look at components and values that can actually be measured in a feed analytical lab, which include percent CP, percent soluble protein, and percent starch, to look at the ration.

George believes that the amount of soluble protein, and starch together in the rumen must be in balance to enhance optimum utilization of both. He decided to translate these values into grams of soluble protein and pounds of starch provided to the cows.

As these two components are broken down in the rumen; the ratio of grams soluble protein to pounds starch was developed to see what effect that relationship had on MUN levels and production.

The September 12, 1995 figures represent what was fed to achieve production and MUN figures on 10/4/95. The 10/10/95 is the ration that generated 11/3/95 production and so on down the chart.

George found it interesting that as this ratio went up, MUN went up and production went down. This told him that increasing MUN values meant that we were wasting protein. Graph B shows this relationship.

Increasing the ratio of soluble protein to starch will increase MUN values, and when that happens, milk production goes down.

Finally, he felt confident in the way MUN values were affected by soluble protein and starch in our rations. He decided that this relationship could produce acceptable MUN values and enhance production.

After the October 1996 test that saw a sharp rise in MUN value, and a drop in production, the ration was changed to keep the ratio of grams soluble protein to pounds starch between 75 and 85. This can be accomplished by altering percent CP, percent soluble protein, percent starch, or a combination of the three.

The four months that followed had a steady increase in production that coincided with a leveling of acceptable MUN values, and the soluble protein to starch ratio between what 75 and 85.

Dairymen always want to know how this all can affect their pocketbooks. "On our farm, using MUN has made a lot of money," George said.

To illustrate this we look at the following calculations:

"Wow! These results even amazed me. I have to tell you in all honesty that this is a true account of what MUN technolgoy did on our farm," George said.

"I am sure that not every farm has this potential for increased earnings, but I also believe that some have more."

George also believes MUN can and should be used by anyone interested in doing a better job feeding their herd.

One must remember, that not all feeding systems are the same and you must tailor programs and technology to make it work on your farm.

One other thing that he said he would like to emphasize is that the relationship of soluble protein to starch or nonstructural carbohydrate is what is important, not the crude protein. Some farms with high hay feeding may need higher crude protein to balance out the starch supply.

"MUN anaylsis was the beginning of the gains we made on our farm since 10/95, and my plans are to use it as much or more in the future. I thank Pennsylvania DHIA for having the insight to make this tool available. I would also like to thank Dr. Ferguson for his initiation of MUN technology. Of course, I hope he does not ask for part of the $510 per cow. I think we can put this to good use," George said.

Agri-King consultant Mike Donaldson and veterinarian Gabby Durkac are part of the team approach in assisting with the operation at Marburger Dairy.

George Cudoc sits at the computer he uses to track herd production and MUN levels, along with other aspects of production and efficiency.

Chester County Dairy Agent Appointed

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension announces that Steven E. Dietrich has joined the staff in Chester County as an Extension Agent in Dairy Science.

Dietrich has worked in his family's partnership, Lynnacres Registered Holsteins in New Tripoli, Lehigh County, PA, most of his life. Lynnacres has over 1,000 acres farmed and boasts 450 head which include 200 young stock (heifers, calves) and 250 milking cows. He has been involved in many aspects of the total operation including feeding, milking, and assisting in herd health. He also assisted with many of the field crop responsibilities including corn and alfalfa in addition to planting the 370-acre soybean crop.

Parents, Mr. & Mrs. William Dietrich, have been dedicated 4-H volunteers for years so it was no surprise that Steve was a 4-Her for 10 years. In addition to the many Dairy projects he completed, he also exhibited swine and participated in numerous county and state leadership events.

After graduating from Northwestern Lehigh High School, he attended Delaware Valley College of Science & Agriculture in Doylestown where he received a Bachelors of Science degree majoring in Dairy Science with a minor in Agribusiness.

Dietrich is based in Chester County, the second largest county in dairy production in Pennsylvania, at Penn State Cooperative Extension, 601 Westtown Road, Suite 370, West Chester, PA 19382, phone (610) 696-3500, fax (610) 696-4831.

SYRACUSE, NY — Raymond Johnson was re-elected President of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) at the 37th Annual Meeting held in late February in Syracuse, New York. Johnson, a dairy farmer from Schaghticoke, New York, starts his 15th year as President of ADADC's Board of Directors, comprised of 30 dairy farmers. In partnership with his son Ed, Johnson operates a 530-acre Holstein dairy farm.

After the election, Johnson said, "As I start my 15th year as ADADC president, I am confident that generic promotion works to build demand for fluid milk as well as other dairy products. If we break out our budget according to the population in our marketplace, we only have about 45 cents per person. It is cear we must find the most productive ways to reach the most number of consumers. I look forward to directing the ADADC staff to utilize our resources in the most effective ways again this year."

Other officers elected were: Vice President Paul Kirsch, Varysburg, NY; Second Vice President Walter Kingston, Geneseo, NY; Treasurer Warren Beardsley, Fairport, NY; Secretary Johanna Collins, Richfield Springs, NY.

New York directors elected to the Executive Committee were: Kenneth DuMont, Chateagay, NY; James Hill, Otto, NY; Wesley Coots, Hornell, NY.

From Pennsylvania, Executive Committee members include: Danile Baker, Covington, PA; Donald Bergey, Millville, PA; Robert Pardoe, Milton, PA; George Stambaugh, Newville, PA.

Dairy Council Has Seventy-Seventh Meeting

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

FEASTERVILLE (Bucks Co). Working with a meeting theme of "From Vision To Value," the 77th annual meeting of Dairy Council, Inc., a regional non-profit nutrition education organization was held at the Buck Hotel, Thursday morning. DCi is funded by check-off moneys from dairy farmer's milk checks. Officials of the Council said the theme reflects their commitment to set market-driven goals and deliver value for the regional dairy farmer's investment in dairy promotion.

The meeting opened with a welcome and remarks from Bob Winner, Dairy Council Board President, and an invocation from Dennis Shea, Board Vice President. Jan Stanton, Executive Director of Dairy Council, Inc., highlighted the organization's accomplishments during 1996 and thanked the dairy industry, Dairy Council customers, and employees for their commitment to nutrition education.

"We thank our regional farmers for their continued support," said Stanton. "I'd like to extend a special thank you to our staff and all of our partners in nutrition education for their commitment to our shared vision."

Jeanne Sowa, Group Executive of Integrated Marketing for Dairy Management, Inc., delivered a presentation, "Identifying Vital Consumer Segments: A Dairy Industry Market Research Study," which deatiled a large scale consumer market research study recently completed by Dairy Management Inc. A presentation "From Science to Practice," was given by Janet Helm, managing director of food and nutrition at Bozell Public Relations, Chicago. Helm discussed the challenge of transfeering to action complex medical and health information through communication channels such as teachers, health professionals, and media.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture was recognized for its important contribution to nutrition education as this year's Friend of Nutrition Education award.

Dairy Council annually recognizes organizations that have made a signficant contribution in the area of nutrition education in the region.

Servint the Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware regions, Dairy Council, Inc. is a non-profit nutrition education organization funded by local dairy farmers. Dairy Council's programs for educators and health professionals promote consumer health and awareness through nutrition education.

TQM Meeting Set

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Dairy producers are invited to attend a workshop on learning how to work together with other professionals as members of total quality management (TQM) teams to effectively address dairy farmers' problems and concerns.

TQM is important on all farms, and particularly important for farms in transition — farms that are undergoing changes in management, going through an expansion phase, or relocating. During these periods of change they struggle to maintain quality (and their market), herd health, productivity, labor efficiency, etc. Many times they are overcrowding present facilities, working under adverse conditions, and have quesitons about acquiring and culling cattle. Good help and effective teamwork is needed.

A TQM Approach to Working with Dairy Farms meeting is scheduled Wednesday, April 16, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. Cost is $8 (payable to Agricultural Extension).

Return the form here or call (717) 394-6851 by April 11.

Dairy producers representing New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania met in February to elect officers and review the Advertising and Promotion program implemented by ADADC during 1996. Retail, Publicity, and Nutrition Education programs reached their highest impact levels ever. Highlights of ADADC's accomplishments include:

•In targeted schools, ADADC increased participation in school feeding programs by 17-25 percent.

•In newspapers and on TV, ADADC generated over $1 million of publicity for milk and dairy products.

For more details, look for the Annual Report to be mailed to ADADC's dairy farmers in mid-April. Copies may be requested by writing to: Stephanie Meyers, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., 219 South West Street, Suite 100, Syracuse, NY 13202-1205.

1997 Dairy Of Distinction Applications Sought

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Do you take pride in maintaining your dairy farm? Does your dairy farm project an attractive, wholesome image to consumers? If so, the Dairy of Distinction Program of New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania will consider your farm for the program's annual recognition awards.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program was first started in 1983 to recognize the hard work and dedication of the farmers who maintained attractive farms. The purpose of the program is to instill a greater sense of confidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products, and increase their sales.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings, since this is what our dairy product consumers observe as they drive by. The cleanliness of the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management are other aspects of the farm operation taken into consideration. Roadside judging is conducted during the month of May. Former winners of past years are also rejudged to ensure they continue to meet standards of excellence.

To qualify for consideration, you must be actively dairy farming and shipping milk. Applications are available for Pennsylvania from: Stephanie Meyers, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., 219 South West St., Suite 100, Syracuse, NY 13202-1205, Phone: (315) 472-9143; for New York: Carol Weddle, 5249 Route 281, Homer, NY 13077, Phone: (607) 749-2504; or New Jersey: August Knispel, 641 Sidney Road, Pittstown, NJ 08867, Phone: (908) 735-4989. All applications must be completed and returned by Tuesday, April 15, 1997.

Feeg points to Randy McCormack, Berks County conservationist, who was instrumental in installing the conservation practices and helping with several projects. Feeg notes the work done by Dave Yonker, formerly with the Soil Conservation Service, and the work of Clyde Myers and Mena Hautau, Berks County ag agents.

"A lot of people were involved to make the whole thing work," he said.

Receiving the honor was similar to the experience of those who win the Oscar, according to Feeg. He indicated there's a lot of people who helped behind the scenes. He pointed out the work he gets from all the farm's hired help, including Ivan Brubacher, herdsman; Jeff Lutz, general farm worker; and part-time milker Lorraine Gechter. Also, Carl Keener, Roland's father-in-law and the original farm owner, works on the farm.

Roland, who is married to Carolyn, has two sons. Donald, 35, works at Car-Tech, Reading, and Roger, 34, works at the Caron Foundation, Wernersville. Roland and Carolyn purchased the dairy from Carolyn's parents, Carl and Alberta Keener, in 1976.

In 1976, the dairy included about 75 grade Holstein. In the years since, Feeg has carefully expanded the original 200-acre operation, which now encompasses about 470 acres of tillable land. About 30 acres are in pasture. Feeg leases another 40 acres for corn and soybeans.

Feeg milks about 135-140 cows with about the same number of replacements. He raises all grade Holstein on private test, with an average of 19,000 pounds for the herd. The milk tests at 8.9 percent protein and 3.9 percent fat.

Feeg uses a double-6 herringbone parlor and milks twice a day. The milk is sold to Clover Farms in Reading.

Feeg said he is looking into the use of a total mixed rations to help improve the milking and reduce cost of feed.

Feeg uses a combination of minimal tillage (about 80 percent of all tillage on the farm) and the rest no-till. Feeg grows about 275 acres of corn, 90 of beans (including 45 acres of early beans), 90 acres of alflafa, 55 acres of wheat, 22 acres of barley, and about 30 acres of grass hay off of pasture.

According to Roland, there are many challenges in the rolling hills north of Womelsdorf, which includes extensive slopes. The soil is mostly a Hagerstown loam/ limestone with some clay.

The dairy boasts several best management practices, or BMPs, installed through the years, according to the district. They include four spring developments in pasture to keep animals out of a stream, diversions totalling 3,300 feet, grass waterways measuring 6,800 feet, and surface drainage totalling 15,700 feet. Crops on contour includes about 196 acres and field stripcropping totals 151 acres.

Feeg, who has been a cooperator since he purchased the farm, said a diversion terrace was installed in 1963. Some tiling was done before 1976. The big projects came in the 1980s when waterways were installed. One diversion measures about 2,000 feet long.

The biggest conservation project he has faced was the spring feeding developments. There are a total of four installed in two phases. The first phase came about 10 years ago and another two were installed about five years ago, according to Feeg.

One of the spring feeding systems is a circular concrete structure, gravity fed, with a water capacity of 500 gallons. An 8-inch line feeds from the spring and another line empties the excess water to a small creek nearby.

Feeg said the springs needed to be installed when, one day after a flooding rain, a cow died stranded in 10 feet of water at the creek. The dead cow episode "started this off," he noted.

The farm also includes an earthen bank storage pond constructed in 1981 that holds 4-6 months of storage at a capacity of approximately 280,000 gallons.

The challenges sometimes aren't easy to face. Getting rid of rocks before tilling the soil places some strain on putting the crops in on time. "Some rocks can be pretty big, even several feet in diameter," he said. Others can lay flat like shale at one-inch thick. Most simply are picked up and put out of the way.

Another challenge is removing the discarded bottles and cans dumped by motorists along the highway. The trash can be torn up by a forage harvester, mix with silage and threaten herd health. Before mowing a waterway that runs alonside Rt. 419, next to which Feeg farms, he uses a lawn tractor and a wagon to pick up the bottles and aluminum cans. The trash is a real nuisance to farming.

A challenge for the crops the past year was dealing with the troublesome weeds, particularly burcucumber, which is posing a challenge. Feeg finds that he has to watch his fields diligently for other problem weeds, including nutsedge, dogbane, velvetleaf, and other broadleaves, in addition to giant foxtail.

When Rt. 419 was constructed back in the 1930s, a big concern was the amount of water from the roadways that was diverted onto his field, when engineers didn't realize the potential soil erosion. A waterway stretches out on the Rt.

Banquet To Honor Conservation Cooperators

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — The Berks County Conservation District and Farm Service Agency are sponsoring the annual Berks County Conservation District Banquet at the Kutztown Grange Hall on Monday, April 7, at 7 p.m.

A family-style beef and turkey dinner is the highlight. A donation of $10 per adult is requested.

At the banquet, several Berks County farm families and individuals will be honored for their conservation work.

Also, the district has several other awards to be presented at the banquet, including:

• Conservation Educator of the Year. The recipient of the educator of the year goes to Patricia Gault, a teacher in the science department at Holy Name High School in Reading. Gault teaches physics and technology of physical science at Holy Name. The district awards the honor to a teacher who has demonstrated a strong commitment to conservation education and activities in kindergarten through 12th grades. Gault has integrated a technical approach to environmental studies at Holy Name in the 1995-1996 school year and established a study site on the school campuse to measure and record local weather conditions, soil moisture content, and analyzed water conditions at a local stream. In addition, she contacted the Berks Conservancy and arranged to monitor the Wyomissing Creek for the conservancy and their efforts. Several other grants were awarded to participate in various projects and participate in conservation-minded programs.

• 1997 Grounds Maintenance Award. The recipient of the 1997 Grounds Maintenance Award is Paul Wanner, manager of the J.C. Ehrlich Green Team in Berks County. Wanner, in his role as lawn and landscape amnager, has been a proponent of integrated pest management (IPM) and has provided training on IPM to the Ehrlich staff.

Two $1,000 scholarships will be awarded to Shanna Triviets, Tulpehocken High School and Nicole Knepp, Governor Mifflin High School.

Chesapeake Bay Program participants honored will be Henry Heflich, Jr., and H&H Farms. Exemplary Erosion and Sedimentation Pollution Control Design Award will be presented to John W. Hoffert, professional land surveyor. A media award will be presented to George Landis, Reading Eagle & Times. The Conservation Organization Award will be presented to the Berks County Conservancy.

419 border of his farm and has to be channeled from one side of the road to the other.

"You find out that where water is dumped, you're going to have erosion," said Feeg. "You can't stop the water. The water's going to go."

If there was no asphalt road, much of the water would simply be absorbed into the ground, according to the conservation farmer.

The waterway and diversion system was completed two years ago and is an effective way of controlling erosion on the farm.

The practices are necessary, because nature is going to do what it wants. "You can't get nature to do what you what it do do," he said.

Others who will be honored at the banquet are included in this issue of Lancaster Farming.

Keystone Farm Credit Reports Profitable Year

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — A festive air permeated the annual stockholders' meetings held by Keystone Farm Credit this week.

"We have had one of the best year's ever," said Phil Kimmel, president of Keystone. Kimmel reported that loan volume grew by 3½ percent, earnings reached $3.8 million, and capital $57 million.

In addition, a patronage distribution program has been implemented, which will return future profits to stockholders.

Farm Credit held two annual meetings to accomodate stockholders living in different areas. The first banquet was held on April 1 at Lehigh Valley Holiday Inn Conference Center in Fogelsville, and the second site was held April 2, at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland.

At both meetings with attendance in excess of 800 people, Kimmel updated members on the cooperative's accomplishments. He said that during the past three years, more than $8 million was returned to customers.

Those who borrow money through Keystone are considered stockholders of a cooperative, which means it is a business owned and controlled by the people using its services. The benefit to members is that they benefit from the cooperative's successful operation.

At the end of each fiscal year, Farm Credit determines total income and expenses. Income remaining after all expenses are deducted are distributed according to the organization's bylaws.

A patronage refund is a way of distributing the association's net income to member-borrowers. While Farm Credit charges loan rates comparable to those charged by other lenders for similar loans, the differece is that the profits are returned to the borrowers, which in essence lowers the cost of borrowing.

A borrower's refund is based on the proportion of interest earned on his loan to the total interest earned by the association.

Patronage refunds will be based from Jan. to Dec. 1997, and members should receive checks in March 1998.

Products and services available through Keystone Farm Credit include long term loans, operating loans, livestock and equipment loans, leasing for equipment and buildings, financial records and management, and appraisal services.

While no promises can be guaranteed for the upcoming year, Kimmel predicted that Keystone's good tract record of profitability will continue.

Jolene Brown, humorist and motivational speaker, serves as the keynote speaker for both events. She related humorist incidents as farm wife, mother, and educator in Iowa. To bring laughter back into your life, Brown stressed the importance of accepting things that cannot be changed, looking for humor in everyday situations, and associating with people who enjoy the journey of life.

Newly elected officers include Harold Knechel, Montgomery farmer; Kenneth S. Meck, Lancaster Co. farmer; Paul Kreider, Lebanon Co. farmer; and Kenneth Schlegel, Berks Co.

Members elected to the nominating committee for a two-year term are A. Duane Hershey, Chester Co.; Leon E. Ziegler, Lebanon Co.; F. Leslie Hershey, Lancaster Co.; Earl S. Weaver, Lancaster Co.; and Daryl Kunkel, Berks Co.

Keynote speaker at the two Keystone Farm Credit stockholders' meetings held this week was Jolene Brown. At left is Phil Kimmel, president, with Jim Garber, director.

Marketing Forum Presents No Sacred Cows Dairy Report

Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The dairy industry can and should target specific groups of people and dairy products in its promotional efforts, if it would gain the best return on investment, according to a report by Gordon Montgomery, vice president of client service with the Leo Burnett Advertising Agency.

Montgomery was one of several speakers at a recent marketing forum sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Bureau of Market Development held at the Agriculture Building in Harrisburg.

Other speakers included New Jersey Secretary of Agriculture Arthur Brown, and Dr. John Lord, chairman of the St. Joseph's University Marketing Department. The context of their reports was published in the March 29 issue of Lancaster Farming.

The PDA Bureau of Market Development is overseen by Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Russell Redding, and is headed by William Mathias.

The Bureau of Market Development conducts domestic and international trade relations, provides auction and market prices for livestock and produce, and administers and supports individual commodity referendums and promotions, Pennsylvania product promotions, and matching funds for agricultural fairs.

The purpose of the marketing forum was to provide an educational opportunity to representatives of a broad range of Pennsylvania agricultural business, and to provide the opportunity for those representatives to discuss issues of mutual concern and to allow for the potential for them to develop cooperative ventures that benefit the industries, and ultimately the state's economy.

For the dairy industry, a marketing research project has been completed that, in essence supports the position that instead of attempting to tell people what is good for them, the industry ought to be finding out what people want and then provide that in a way that is good for them.

The research document itself is volumenous, containing a variety of reports on different aspects of people, purchasing situations, actual and reported consumption behaviors, knowledge surveys, etc.

The research project was, "No Sacred Cows," and, of course, implied that in order to conduct an effective marketing program, all dairy industry promotion leaders must separate themselves from personal desires of what would be a nice "face" to put on the dairy industry, and deal with the realities of who the consumers are, what they want and what is effective in motivating them to purchase dairy goods.

The goal of the project was to develop, "A dairy industry marketing plan that is consumer- and customer-driven; focused; solution-neutral; fully integrated; and measurable."

The scope of the project included milk, cheese and butter and food service and manufacturing as delivery channels.

For each dairy product, the research identified segments of consumers and the delivery system that offer the most potential for growth; strategies built around realities of what drives dairy consumption in those segments; and a "portfollio logic" which calls for spending portions of the promotion budget on targeted areas, instead of broadbrush spending, in order to get the greatest return on investment.

What the study means to the face of the dairy promotion industry remains to be seen. It depends on the interpretations and followup actions of those who serve on promotion committees and on committees allocating funds.

According to Montgomery, among other things, previous marketing studies didn't correlate public perceptions and attitudes toward dairy products with the public's actual consumption behaviors.

Surveys conducted under this more comprehensive program reveal that while most people say that milk is good for health, and understand that milk provides healthy benefits and calcium for stronger bones, etc., the truth is that most people stop drinking milk in recommended levels before they hit their teens and begin to make their own food choices away from home.

Actually, the trend to decrease milk drinking reportedly correlates fairly well to developmental age and to increased opportunities for independence and decision-making.

Mothers still rule and influence appropriate milk consumption while children are young, according to Montgomery, but carbonated beverages win out as youth mature into young adults.

It is implied that social positioning of carbonated and other beverages has created a pressure on people to discontinue milk consumption to demonstrate maturity to peers and others.

The research was different from past research also in that its research looked at multiple dairy products, all age groups, consumption and purchasing behavior, and recorded instead of reported behavior.

Previous research that depended on consumer answers revealed that, in dairy consumption as in other areas of life, people will give what they have been taught is a "correct" answer when surveyed (unless being contrary is their nature), but that doesn't mean that is what they actually practice.

Creating effective marketing strategies means working with what people actually practice.

Further, the new research looked at additional information that is linked to consumption of dairy products, such as attitudes.

According to Montgomery, the study was the most comprehensive in dairy history and included 4,633 individuals, representing everyone over the age of 5 in 1,476 households. Mothers answered for those under the age of 5.

Recorded was actual eating behavior during a two-week stretch, including all meals and snacks in home and out of home.

It also covered the different seasons, and was nationwide.

There was also included a separate study into different sectors of the delivery system — such as restaurants and schools, and there was a follow-up among consumers.

What some of the data showed was that for those under age 18 there is a "high per capita consumption," which means that, on the whole, kids under 18 drink a lot milk.

The data also shows that those older than 18 drink little milk.

Those 18 and older represented 76 of the population and 54 percent of the volume of milk consumed, while those under 18 represented 24 percent of the population and 46 percent of the milk consumption.

The research also further broke down the under-18 group to find out what was happening.

The research conclusions are that from ages 1-8 boys drink the most milk, peaking at 8, because mother dictates consumption.

After age 8, mothers tend to not supervise boys' consumption of milk and it drops off. Also, school milk presents a problem generally because it isn't presented at its optimum temperature and with perceived problems with beverage containers.

From ages 13 to 17, boys have more independence of choice away from home, more beverages compete with milk, it isn't positioned well with all foods, and again, school milk isn't presented to provide top quality or quantity.

According to research, girls reach their consumption peak at age 6, then drop on through their teens. From ages 6-12, girls drop milk consumption for the same reason that boys do.

After age 12, however, girls stop drinking milk because they fear it will affect their appearance (make them fat). It was found that girls from 12 to 17 "shed foods and beverages they don't love."

For adults, consumption was seen as static, changing little over the years. Of adults, 4 percent drink milk several times per day with meals and account for 11 percent of the adult consumption; 14 percent drink milk at one meal and account for 20 percent of the consumption; 10 percent drink lightly, but have a positive attitude toward milk and consume about 5 percent; 22 percent of adults have milk with their cereal only and represent 15 percent of the consumption; 14 percent are light drinkers but have a negative outlook on milk and represent 5 percent of consumption; while 10 percent of adults studied don't drink milk.

According to Montgomery, what was shown was that there are three segments in the adult sector that show promise for increasing consumption — the multiple meal drinkers; the single meal drinkers and the light drinkers with a positive attitude.

The question is, of those adults who are already drinking lots of milk, and believe in it, how much more can they consume, and what difference would that make to return on promotion investment?

Of the light drinkers with a positive attitude, they like milk, but like other beverages more.

Those who drink milk at a single meal daily have positive attitudes, almost as positive as heavy drinkers, and represent the biggest opportunity for increased sales, according to Montgomery.

The rest of the adults in the study were considered very set in their ways and not open to considering consuming more or any milk.

According to Montgomery, "Milk is caught in the balance between control and independence. At the beginning, when mom's in control, most kids are daily drinkers of milk. As soon as they taste independence, kids and teens are drawn to more interesting, more visible, higher image beverages, though mom can still play a role.

"As teens turn into fully independent young adults, milk suffers further. School milk is replaced by fast food soft drinks. They're in charge of the pantry, and soft drinks and coffee actually gain more in-home than out-of-home.

"Eventually, adult beverage routines soldify — some favorable, most unfavorable to milk. Milk loses its place as the preeminent beverage, and health benefits are increasingly gained elsewhere," he said, citing drinks as calcium-fortified orange juice to replace that nutrient.

The situation grows upon itself, as weak adult habits are passed onto the next generation.

As far as opportunities to increase the selection of milk as a beverage, Montgomery said that mothers still want to do what is best for their children, but she is less able because she is out of home working and time pressures and bigger concerns get in the way.

"Milk must take competitive beverages more seriously," Montgomery said. "Milk is said to compete, 'on its own ladder,' and to an extent that is true because it has not been a truly effective beverage competitor.

"As a liquid, it competes for the beverage occasion and it must change to win."

According to Montgomery, research shows that milk must change its packaging, the product itself, and its image, in order to compete.

To achieve a common currency among the different dairy products studied — fluid milk, butter, cheese, and also nonfat dry milk for the currency determination — the current value of each was expressed in terms of its return to producers and the amounts of each based on equal volumes according to milk equivalents and 4-year average federal order class prices.

That way factors were created to use in establishing a "common currency" among dairy products.

The reason for establishing a "common currency" among dairy products is to be able to compare their relative value to the farmer and to find out where lies the greatest potential to increase on-farm income from promoting the sale of those products with the most potential for increased sales.

Marketing Forum Presents No Sacred Cow Dairy Report

At least within the past several years, the industry has become more and more aware that the domestic food market has become saturated. In essence, though there are understandably some valid cases of malnutrition and hunger in the United States, the buying public has the ability to purchase far more than it can consume.

Some have described modern sales strategies as competing for "shares of the stomach" rather than competing for people or groups of people.

Likewise, the dairy gist of the report was that the dairy industry needs to examine its product lines, look at the potential for growth and producer income in each, and work to more effectively promote those that reasonably stand to reap some significant increases.

In an example (based on a milk value no longer applicable), that compared the return and value of the dairy product in terms relative to milk value paid to the farmer, cheese represented the highest value.

To calculate how much potential value a specific dairy product or catagory of product has, the researchers multiplied the maximum growth that can be expected in that segment based on consumption trends, by the leveragability (the amount of growth in that area that reasonably can be gained).

The maximize leveragability, the consumer motivations and rejections have to be understood and dealt with through marketing.

In some cases, such as school milk, repackaging, better handling, and providing flavors and products that compete with non-dairy beverages is considered a potential area for growth.

But while mental connections to greater consumption can be assumed, Montgomery said that assumptions should be minimized and that is why the research is very valuable to the industry.

"For the first time, we have th ability to make apples-to-apples comparisions of opportunities across products and channels (delivery systems, i.e. schools, restaurants, retail outlets), enabling us to develop resource allocation recommendations (suggestions for spending) that will optimize the 'return on investment' of industry investment in consumption-building efforts."

Further, he said that now the industry is better poised for better use of its promotion funds because it now has some well-defined audiences and products to target for promotions and educaitonal efforts.

For improving consumption among the adult sector that seems open to increasing consumption — the single meal consumers — Montgomery said it appears that the industry needs to build on positive motivations and also to develop new food associations, food compatibilities and those things that lead to multiple-meal habits.

The research conducted similar analysis for cheese and butter consumptions.

It also, for the first time, created a series of formulas to be able to compare the value of all different dairy products, so that strategies for increasing consumptions can be considered fairly.

Using a common currency strategy it is possible to compare where to direct promotion dollars for the best return potential.

To achieve a common currency among the different dairy products studied — fluid milk, butter, cheese, and also nonfat dry milk for the currency determination — the current value of each was expressed in terms of its return to producers and the amounts of each based on equal volumes according to milk equivalents and 4-year average federal order class prices.

That way factors were created to use in establishing a "common currency" among dairy products.

Dairy Stewardship Task Force Convenes

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) — Members of the Dairy Network Partnership (DNP) and Atlantic Dairy Cooperative (ADC) met with the newly founded Stewardship Education Task Force to begin a collective effort toward a unification of ecological and agricultural interests.

The Task Force, which is comprised of 10 southeastern Pennsylvania dairy farmers, was established to collaborate on DNP efforts in several projects, including a mini-grant project, low-interest loan prospects, farmer based education forums, the Environmental Farmstead Evaluation, a cost and benefit project and stewardship recognition propositions.

Participants on the Task Force share a commitment to the sustainability of dairy farming as well as dedication to the preservation of natural resources.

The activities of the group focus on the development of effective methods of meeting both economic and environmental goals. Members are charged with providing input to DNP projects which directly affect the dairy industry in Pennsylvania.

Lori Sandman, project leader, said, "We understand the sacrifice the volunteer members of the Task Force will be making to attend the meetings. We also realize that their input is vital to successfully accomplishing our objectives."

The program was officially begun on Feb. 27 with the first full Task Force meeting. The meetings are slated to convene quarterly.

Task Force members were provided with an agenda and background information about scheduled topics prior to the meeting. DNP staff presented progress reports on current programs and overviews of proposed projects. Task Force members responded with suggestions and concerns about DNP projects and the effectiveness of the DNP activities.

The Mini-Grant project was discussed. It provides financial assistance of up to $500 to support the costs of implementing pasture and stream management practices.

The project was initiated in the fall of 1996, and funding has been approved for seeding and fencing of rotational exercise lots, stream crossing and cattle lane stabilization using hog slats, and stream fencing.

DNP Mini-grants may also be used for stream crossings in conjunction with funding for stream bank fencing by the Pa. Game Commission, the Chesapeake Bay Program, or county conservation districts.

Through an application process, mini-grant funds are being approved and implemented, according to Leon Weber, on-farm coordinator for the DNP.

Members discussed the prospect of low interest loans as a means of enabling farmers to install pollution control measures.

As a model for the proposed program, the Delaware Program was investigated, which offers loans up to $100,000 over 10 years at a 3 percent interest rate. Eligible projects for loan use include a wide range of waste management and resource management systems and equipment.

A list of Best Management Practices was catalogued and prioritized by the members of the Task Force for cost and benefit evaluation. The narrowed list of practices will be the focus of detailed literature research for discussion at the next meeting.

The DNP is to compile the results into a useful cost and benefit information package for distribution to farmers and others interested in dairy stewardship.

In order to improve pollution management and productivity, many farmers are using the Environmental Farmstead Evaluation to assess on-farm conditions. Based on the national Farm*A*Syst Program, this evaluation provides useful data to the farmer on which management practices are working and where focusing resources might be beneficial.

Participation in an evaluation is voluntary and requires no obligation from the participants. Task force members were given the opportunity to volunteer their farmsteads for evaluation, and to serve as a resource for other farmers interested in evaluations of their farms.

Various farm-based education forums were suggested as a source of information on stewardship practices. Conferences and field events provide current information and working examples of farms which participate in the discussed practices. Activities such as pasture walks enable farmers to observe working practices at neighboring farmsteads.

In addition to financial support, members of the task force suggested that stewardship recognition is an important incentive for stewardship management changes. Methods of identification and selection of candidates for recognition were discussed, as well as the awards which would most encourage farmers to adopt new practices.

The Task Force will contribute its expertise to another DNP effort known as the Joint Best Management Practices Plan. The Plan, launched with the other Dairy Network Partners which include the Rodale Institute, Chesapeake Bay Foundation, Penn State University, Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, and the U.S. EPA, will include all activities developed and implemented by the DNP. Task Force members will contribute suggestions on how to expand the scope of the project to include all ADC members.

"The Atlantic Dairy Cooperative is pleased to be taking an active part in the process of improving environmental quality and enhancing the profitability of our members. Members who participate in the Task Force will be instrumental in developing a practices plan that may include all ADC members," said Laura England, director of communications for the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

The mission of the Dairy Network Partnership is to improve environmental quality and enhance the profitability of the region's dairy farmers. The Partnership will also coninue to support cost share reform and promote the use of practices that improve environmental quality in a cost-effective way.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative members interested in becoming a member of the Stewardship Education Task Force should contact Laura England at (800) 645-6455 or Lori Sandman at (610) 683-1476.

Students Win Research Awards

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Three graduate students in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences have been selected to receive the fifth annual John O. Almquist Graduate Student Research Award.

The awards, sponsored by Genex Cooperative Inc., are intended to assist graduate students in the Department of Dairy and Animal Science in conducting quality research and to encourage the development of quality research proposals.

Harry Roth, general manager of Genex Cooperative Inc., presented the awards to Keith Bryan, Kathy Soder, and Dezhong Yin at a recent luncheon and award ceremony. All three are doctoral candidates in the animal science graduate program.

Graduate research proposals were evaluated and award recipients selected by a faculty committee chaired by Dr. John Comerford, associate professor of animal science. The winning students will receive funds to support their research in pursuit of a graduate degree.

Keith Bryan's research topic is "Effects of Exogenous Somatotropin and Gonadotropins on Ovarian Folliculogenesis in Peripubertal Gilts." His adviser is Dr. Daniel Hagen, professor and interim head of the dairy and animal science department.

Kathy Soder's research topic is "Influence of Dietary Cation-Anion Imbalance on Metabolic Health and Milk Production in Grazing Dairy Cows." Her adviser is Dr. Lisa Holden, assistant professor of dairy and animal science.

Dezhong Yin's research topic is "Transcriptional Regulation of the Fatty Acid Synthase Gene by Somatotropin in 3T3 F442A Adipocytes." His adviser is Dr. Terry Etherton, distinguished professor of animal nutrition.

Dr. John Almquist, the professor emeritus of dairy science for whom the awards are named, was on hand at the presentation to congratulate the winners.

DeKALB, Ill. — Years of biotechnology research and field testing are available to growers as Dekalb Genetics Corporation adds 20 new herbicide and insect resistant seed products to its product lineup. Several of these new products combine Dekalb's proven strong genetic performance with value-added specialty trait benefits. Newcomers to Dekalb's extensive product line include: corn hybrids bred for resistance to widely used herbicides like sethoxydim, a grass herbicide sold under the brand name Poast®, Glufosinate for broad spectrum post-emergence control and Imidazolinone, an annual broadleaf and grasses herbicide designed for use with IMI-Corn™ hybrids.

New soybean releases include several new Roundup Ready™ varieties, as well as STS™ soybeans for use with DuPont® soybean Sulfonylurea herbicides. Dekalb has also introduced a new early fall dormant alfalfa variety with the HopperGuard™ protection trait, which provides proven resistance to potato leafhopper insects.

This Shaker-style kitchen is where the chef from Reflections will serve his restaurant specialty to participants of the Kitchen Kaper Tulip Tour scheduled for Monday, April 28, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Notice the soapstone sink, which is a quarry stone similar to granite, and the English cookstove, which requires a whole new way of cooking, but "its quicker and food tastes better," Rossman said.

Tom Rossman designs and makes heirloom-quality furniture in the Shaker style. One of the most popular pieces is the entertainment center beside him.

Shaker Furniture Is Part Of Kitchen Tour

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — "This looks just like Grandmother's," Tom Rossman said of the soapstone sink installed in The Shaker Shoppe kitchen.

Rossman's heirloom quality work fills several rooms with Shaker furniture and is part of the annual Ephrata Kitchen Kaper Tulip Tour.

On April 28, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., participants will tour seven different kitchens and sample food specialties served at each stop by local restaurants.

The popularity of the simple lines of Shaker furniture is evident by this tour, where not only is Rossman's place featured but his Shaker-style furniture is used in two other homes included in the tour.

"Our furniture is shipped all over the world," Rossman said of the furniture he and his wife Sue designed by researching Shaker history in New England.

In 1980, Rossman started his own heirloom-quality kitchen business. At the request of several clients who ordered Shaker-style kitchens, Rossman started making tables, chairs, entertainment centers, and other home furnishings.

Rossman's kitchen and furnishings are unique. He uses old techniques to make the wood appear worn to a beautiful sheen.

All the wood is hand-planed, with dovetailing, mortise and tenons features. The furniture is not rustic but highly refined with comfortable, simplicity. A wooden countertop of a work area has been hollowed out and knife cuts show that it is well used. The Corian countertops have curved and dipped corners to tie the simple lines of Shaker with the modern convenience of easy care, durable Corian. Wooden knobs and beading give the appearance of an old-fashioned kitchen, but drawers and doors when open reveal all the modern convenieces of lazy Susans, trash compacters, and pantry shelves. An English cookstove features radiant heat that cooks like a brick oven.

"Food tastes better and cooks quicker on it," said Rossman as he stuck a roaster in the broiling oven and added a shelf to the simmering oven.

In addition to furniture, The Shaker Shoppe offers accessory items such as hand-painted Maple Colony stoneware, hand-woven baskets, woven table runners, and banded boxes.

Rossman described his wife Sue as an excellent draftsperson with an interior design degree who draws layouts for the kitchens and does the bookwork for the business.

Other Homes On Tour

Walter and Dolores Lewis, 1146 Marilyn Ave., Ephrata, expanded their one-story home to include a screened-in porch that overlooks their newly landscaped yard and pool. Dolores' collection of lambs are displayed on the mantle of a gas-logged fireplace. The Akron Restaurant, operated by the Lewis's three children, will serve food in the live-in kitchen. Flowers will be presented by The Ephrata Flower Shop.

Richard and Pam Weeber, 1125 Lincoln Heights Ave., Ephrata, have a spacious home both indoors and out. A two-story entrance hall is the perfect place for a colorful Lancaster County hanging quilt. The stairs and all floors are hardwood throughout the house and are covered with fine Oriental rugs. A spinning wheel owned by Pam's great-great grandmother has been refinished by Pam's grandfather. The Weeber's collection of Longenberger baskets can be seen throughout the house.

Pam's large kitchen is finished with cherry cabinets. The ovens are topped with a brick colonial oven design. The table and chairs in the eating area were constructed by the Shaker Shoppe. Decorations are provided by LeFleur Boutique of Doneckers. The restaurant of Doneckers will serve food.

The Hacker House is a recent restoration of an early 1800's piece of history. Of special interest are the new kitchen, Williamsburg colors throughout, and a Federal style pedimented doorcase to the front entrance.

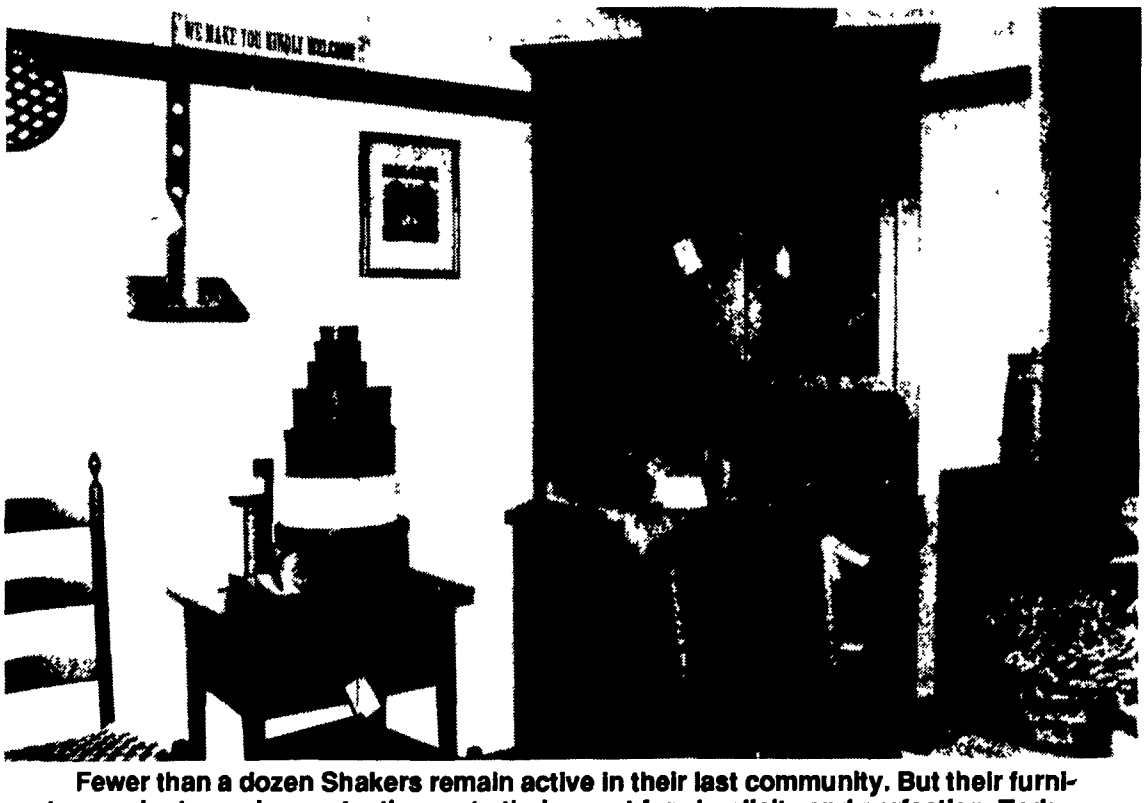
While earning his Master Planner's Certificate, one of Fred's requirements was to work on a study of Lincoln's Main Street, which he titled "Reclaiming New Ephrata." This name, originally taken from the Ephrata Cloisters, was later renamed Lincoln. Now part of Ephrata, the area is actually 50 years older than the borough it has joined.

Michael Nix of Groundskeeper Landscape Gardeners, Denver, reserched the period to select authentic plants for the outdoors. Visitors will find a brick walkway and numerous new varieties of perennials. Furniture is provided by The Shaker Shoppe.

Arrangements will be by Royers Flowers of Ephrata. The Lincoln House will serve food.

Paul and Brenda Zimmerman, 975 A Lincoln Rd., Lititz, are well known for their Hammercreek Exotics farm, where they raise llamas, emus, zebras, ostriches, and other exotic animals. Their handsome stone farmhouse has been renovated and reconstructed to restore its beauty. A photo album showing the work from start to finish will be on display during the tour.

(Turn to Page B3)



Fewer than a dozen Shakers remain active in their last community. But their furniture and art remain as a testimony to their quest for simplicity and perfection. Today Shaker-style furniture has gained popularity among those searching for furniture that seems to become even more beautiful with age.

The annual Kitchen Kaper Tulip Tour, sponsored by the GFWC Woman's Club of Ephrata, is scheduled for April 28, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Participants can tour seven different kitchens and sample food specialties served at each stop by local restaurants.

The 10th annual tour offers a kaleidoscope of decorating and food ideas. In addition to each owners own decor, a local floral designer has been assigned to each home to add finishing touches.

A limited amount of tickets are available and should be ordered in advance. Tickets per person (including children) are $8 in advance and $9 on the day of the tour. Send a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope to Elsie Minnich, 1141 Joann Ave., Ephrata, PA 17522. Phone (717) 336-6424. Or, Helen Gensemer, 31 Stony Run Village, Denver, PA 17517. Phone (717) 336-6424.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Shaker Furniture

Serving samples in the kitchen will be Frank's Gourmet Italian Deli and Java and Sweets, both from Donecker's Farmer's Market.

Floral arrangements will be done by the design department of Esbenshade's Greenhouses.

John and Barbara Burns, 229 Mayberry Dr., Lititz, have a cape cod home that was renovated by Steven Black. The garage was turned into a family room. Each room in the house holds interesting collections and trees. The living room tree has hand-painted bees-wax ornaments. The walls in each room have Santas, and collections of groups of carolers appear throughout the house. A Dickens porcelain village collection is located in the family room. The walk-in fireplace features an antique wrought iron crane and kettle and is heated by gas logs. Even the bathrooms and laundry say, "Merry Christmas."

Checkers Restaurant and Pub of Ephrata will serve food in the kitchen.

Werner and Debrah Moismann, 500 Blantz Rd., Lititz, will open their bed and breakfast inn called Swiss Woods, which earned a 3 diamond AAA rating. Both the exterior architecture and the luxurious indoor rooms were inspired by the backgrounds of Werner and Debrah, who met in Austria, married in Debrah's Lancaster County home, and spent the early part of their marriage in Werner's native Switzerland.

Werner helped Debrah's father, Paul Neff, hand carve the mantle in the Anker Stube (the Common Room). Werner's special talent is found in the profusion of flowers surrounding the inn. A vast array of spring flowers and flowering trees should be in bloom. In addition, the Moismanns home will feature indoor plants and flowers; which they grow.

Debrah's degree in home economics helped her develope recipes for breakfast foods. Some of these will be served during the tour. Mirjam, the eldest daughter and one of four children, will provide violin music while friends accompany with clarinet and flute.

The 10th annual tour offers a kaleidoscope of decorating and food ideas. In addition to each owners own decor, a local floral designer has been assigned to each home to add finishing touches.

A limited amount of tickets are available and should be ordered in advance. Tickets per person (including children) are $8 in advance and $9 on the day of the tour. Send a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope to Elsie Minnich, 1141 Joann Ave., Ephrata, PA 17522. Phone (717) 336-6424. Or, Helen Gensemer, 31 Stony Run Village, Denver, PA 17517. Phone (717) 336-6424.

On the day of the tour, tickets should be picked up at the Ephrata Church of the Brethren. Arts, crafts, and refreshments will be on sale. Restroom facilities are not available at any other stop on the tour other than the church. In the sanctuary, Rev. Mark Herr, minister of Christian education and youth, will be playing 15-minute organ recitals at 10 a.m., noon, and 2 p.m.

Jim Hummel, florist of Brossman Flower Shop will decorate the church sanctuary.

Crossed Wires

At our house, Russell says that when he does the supper dishes in the evening he's sending me a message. The problem, I told him, is that I don't really know exactly what message he is sending unless he verbally tells me! Sure I can guess, but what if my assumption is wrong?

The marriage relationship is all about communications and understanding each other's communication.

Here's a great article I read recently from the British Columbia Concerning Couples newsletter. Have you ever had a conversation like this with your mate?

Wife: "You never tell me you love me anymore!" Husband: "I do so. All the time." W: "Yeah, like when?" H: "Last night at dinner, I reached out and took your hand. Then later, I smiled at you when you came back into the room from the kitchen." W: "That's not telling me you love me! I want to hear it. I want to see it written on a card..." H: "But I tell you I love you all the time by the things that I do."

Does this conversation, or one like it sound familiar to you? Couples miscommunicate all the time, because they simply don't pick up on what they are trying to tell each other. Sometimes it seems like you're listening to different radio stations at the same time and not even close to being on the same wavelength.

In verbal communication, interpretation is difficult enough. "What did you mean when you said...?" But when it comes to the nuances of an intimate relationship — over time — how do you communicate messages between the two of you in ways that are understood?

We all have different ways that we like to be told we are loved, cared for, respected, needed, appreciated, etc. Some people like to hear the actual words. Others like it to be written down, yet others know by what another does for them. A common problem is that we often let our partner know how we feel in ways that make sense for us. Unfortunately, this may not be the most accurate means of communicating with our spouse.

A first tip is to watch the ways your spouse says "I love you." They are giving some very broad hints about how they like to be told. The second, is to have a conversation about it. How do I like to be told? How do you?

The following questions can be used to guide your conversation. If you tend towards introversion, you will find this exercise more helpful if you take some time to think about your responses before you schedule a date to talk about it together.

1. What is (are) my personal preferred way(s) of knowing that you care for, love, respect, need and appreciate me? Specific ways that you could communicate this to me are:

2. What do I notice about how you communicate this to me? What hints do I think you are giving me about how you like to be communictaed with? (Check them out! Are you accurate in your guesses?)

3. How do I typically let you know that I care for, respect, love, appreciate you? Am I using the most effective means?

4. Something that you do or say, which I am not sure about the meaning of is...

5. When I do or say _____, I don't get the response I am expecting. By this, I mean to communicate _____. Does this come through to you? How could I send you this message more accurately?

After you have this conversation (not always the easiest one to have, and undoubtedly more difficult the longer the time you have been crossing wavelengths), sit down and come up with a list of seven ways you can accurately communicate care, respect, love, etc. to your spouse.

Try one a day, all week. At the end of the week, take the pulse of your relationship. Have things changed? Check in with your spouse. Are you communicating more accurately? How could you fine tune this even more? Seems like a lot of work? Well, healthy relationships do take work, but the rewards are worth it!

NEW JOHN DEERE 466 AND 566 ROUND BALERS

Perfect bale after perfect bale...acre after acre

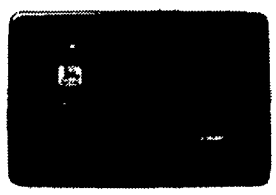
Among the seven new John Deere round balers are two especially suited to large-acreage hay fields . . . the new 466 and 566 Round Balers.

Perfect bales – every time – start with the exclusive new BaleTrak® Plus monitor. It's the most advanced monitor-controller available – and it's a standard feature. Virtually every function is controlled on-the-go from the cab – from setting bale diameter to adjusting the twine spacing and number of wraps.

New pickups pack more hay into the bale. The patented, new MegaTooth pickup features stronger teeth and three times the pickup power. It's ideal for tough or wet crops. The wide-pickup option is perfect for gathering scattered windrows. Or, choose the standard pickup with increased strength over previous models.

Both balers feature John Deere's field-proven variable-belt forming chamber with exclusive staggered, diamond-tread belts. These reduce both leaf loss and bale chafing. You'll build tight, dense bales that stand firm and tall when others slouch and sag.

Choose the baler that best fits your operation. The 466 Baler makes 4-foot-wide, 6-foot-tall, 1,650-pound bales; the 566 Baler makes 5-foot-wide, 6-foot tall, 2,200-pound bales. Visit your John Deere dealer to see how these new balers combine field-tested productivity with new time-saving baling controls.



The exclusive new BaleTrak Plus monitor lets you control baling without leaving the tractor seat. Choose the bale size, then opt for twine spacing or surface-wrap (or switch from one to the other). You can even select the number of twine end-wraps or surface-wraps, and set the distance of twine from the bale ends.

People in general are a restless bunch. They like to travel and see the rest of the world. However, many folks never leave their own county.

Just now it seems that my relatives are really into traveling. My sisters have vacations planned to Arizona, Ireland for bicycling, and a two-month truck-camper trip across the United States.

Our childrens' families move around even more. One goes to Spain and England regularly while another just came home from a three-week assignment in China. Previously he spent time at a newly built plant in India where conditions were quite primitive.

I've done my share of traveling but now I am content to let the children visit me. Three times I flew to Europe and one time to Hawaii. My husband and I went to Alaska and also drove across the country to Seattle several years ago. Then there were several trips across Canada and a cruise in the Caribbean.

One usually meets congenial people on trips and can bring home many happy memories. We've visited people in New York state and in Vermont who we met in 1981. And, or course, the pictures taken during these trips are wonderful reminders of sunny days.

Now I'm satisfied to stay home and hear about other people's travels while I work at home. My yellow and red raspberries have been pruned. The garden hasn't been planted but often the sugar peas do as well if they are planted a bit later.

My husband has been very busy learning how to fell large trees. Many ash trees, some with 20-foot trunks, have been hauled to the saw mill. Our son wants to plant corn in what was a pasture area and so many locust fence posts had to be removed. Now trees are being sawed down so that there will be less shade.

It seems that Allen and I are always making more work for ourselves.

Egg Breaking Recipes

Hard to believe, but it's still possible to serve dinner for under a dollar a serving.

Most of us need to pinch pennies from time to time and dollar-wise dinners make it possible.

Protein is an essential part of a nutritious diet, but protein foods can be the most expensive items on a grocery list. Eggs provide very high quality protein at a low price.

One large egg provides enough protein to equal one ounce of meat, fish or poultry. Two eggs can substitute for other protein foods as a main dish. Or eggs can be used to stretch more expensive protein foods.

That means you can serve a crab quiche or ham scramble for about 50 to 60 cents a serving or less.

Eggs have no bone, fat or gristle waste.

Try these "eggciting" recipes to stretch your food dollars.

DEVILED EGGS

6 hardcooked eggs
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut eggs crosswise. Remove yolks, mix with seasonings and mayonnaise. Refill whites and garnish with parsley or paprika.

8 large eggs, hardcooked
8 teaspoons cornstarch

Peel the eggs; slice into ¼ -inch slices. Coat with cornstarch.

Heat a thin layer of oil in a frying pan. Fry egg slices of both sides until golden. Arrange cooked slices on a serving platter. Add sauce ingredients to the oil in the pan and heat. Pour over eggs; serve immediately. Makes 10-12 servings.

BACON STUFFED EGGS

4 ounces cream cheese, softened
2-3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce

For a high-protein, low-cost meal, serve quiche. For a lower fat version, omit the crust, use skim milk and low-fat cheese.

MAKE AHEAD SCRAMBLED EGGS

5 tablespoons butter, divided
¼ cup all-purpose flour
2 cups milk
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
¼ cup finely chopped onions
12 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
10 ounce package frozen chopped broccoli, cooked and drained
1 cup soft bread crumbs

In a saucepan, melt 2 tablespoons butter. Add flour. Cook and stir until mixture begins to bubble.

Gradually stir in milk, bring to a boil, cook and stir for 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in cheese until melted; set aside. In a large skillet, saute mushrooms and onions in 2 tablespoons butter until tender. Add eggs and salt; cook and stir until the eggs are completely set. Add the cheese sauce and broccoli; mix well. Pour into a greased 11x7x2-inch baking dish. Melt the remaining butter and toss with bread crumbs. Sprinkle over egg mixture. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Remove from refrigerator for 30 minutes before baking. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes or until top is golden brown. Yield: 6-8 servings.

It's time to let America's little "baking animals" go wild in the kitchen to create the world's largest edible zoo! Eight lucky kids will have a chance to participate in Land O'Lakes presents the Second Annual Camp Cookie.

Simply by writing a 25-word essay on why they're a "smart cookie," kids in grades three through six will have a chance to attend Camp Cookie in Minnesota where they'll learn the basics of the kitchen and experience the jobs of baking. Check Kid's Korner for contest details.

For cookie recipes, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Camp Cookie Recipe Leaflet, P.O. Box 39104, Chicago, IL 60639 or call 1-800-782-9602 and ask for the Camp Cookie Recipe Leaflet.

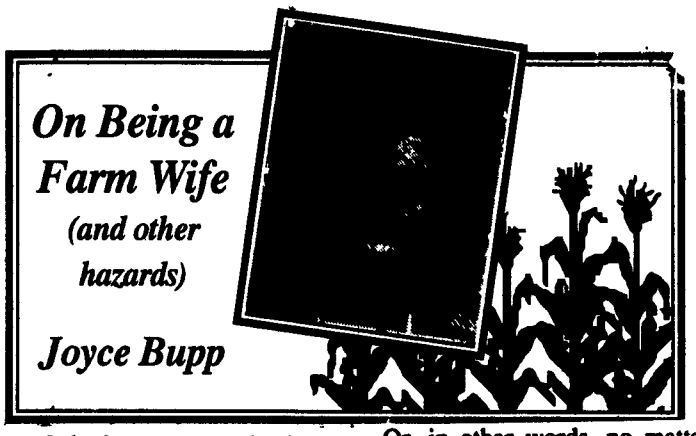
Here is a recipe to have fun baking with your children while teaching them the tricks of baking.

CHEWY JUMBO CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

3¼ cups all-purpose flour
1 cup cake flour*
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1¼ cups sugar
1¼ cups brown sugar
1½ cups butter, softened
2 eggs
1 tablespoon vanilla
2 cups semi-sweet chocolate chips or chunks

Heat oven to 375 degrees. In medium bowl, combine flour, cake flour, baking soda, and baking powder; set aside. In large mixer bowl, combine sugar, brown sugar, and butter. Beat at medium speed, scraping bowl often; until creamy (2 to 3 minutes). Add eggs and vanilla. Continue beating; scaping bowl often until well mixed (1 minute). Reduce speed to low, continue beating, gradually adding flour mixture, until well mixed (2 to 3 minutes). By hand, stir in chocolate chips. Drop dough by ¼ cupfuls 2 inches apart onto cookie sheets. Bake for 10 to 14 minutes; remove from cookie sheets. 26 jumbo cookies.

*1 cup all-purpose flour minus 2 tablespoons, can be substituted for 1 cup cake flour. (Cookies will be flat and less chewy).



No. I don't want to go back to the "good old days."

And, I'm not going to wax sentimental about how we used to do things. Or how simple or much better life used to be. Or bore you with all that "now, when I was a kid..." stuff.

Still, there are moments when I almost yearn to return to the historical era of B.C.

You know B.C. Before Computers.

Computerization has "tripped my trigger" since the first Pcs came onto the market at a price that made the ownership of such technology a cost-effective possibility for the general public. Nevertheless, every advance I've made on the road to technological progress has had to begin with a push.

That's because, despite glib "plug-and-play" marketing promises, there will inevitably be a bunch of gliches somewhere in between the plugging in and the playing of the program. The incredible advancement of computer technology has still not overcome the fact that taking a byte into the chip still yields some crumbs.

Or, in other words, no matter how simple it's supposed to be, your high-tech journey will still be pocked with potholes.

Our first computer came into the office about 15 years ago when my faithful, used, electric typewriter hiccupped for the umpteenth time, and choked. A total technological ignoramus, except for the minimal terminology I'd grasped scanning reading materials, I tiptoed into a local computer salesroom like a 5-year-old entering kindergarten. But I returned home with 128K memory and a knot in my stomach.

How would I ever get the stuff up and running?

No sweat. Our youngest paraded home from sixth grade, plugged all the components together, and in an hour I was computing. With a call to the manufacturer, a few days later I even managed to eliminate the triple-spacing the printer insisted on inserting between every line of hard copy.

Confidence grew as I learned to make the system work, though I never did really learn DOS or how to go into the guts of the system. And occasionally, it struck absolute terror into my heart. Never more so than when I hit some combination of keys — which to this day I've never figured out — and got total computer lock-up and a stern message that "you have found an error at 123456789..." or whatever bunch of numbers it happened to be.

A decade later, the beloved sidekick followed the typewriter to high-tech heaven. With slightly more confidence this round, we entered a new era of Windows on the world. And fell in love with a mouse that did something more worthwhile than chew up stuff it shouldn't and leave residue behind in the cupboards and drawers. Still plugging away, however, was our original stone-age-geared, dot-matrix printer.

The mouse's tummy ball was barely warm from use when computerization zoomed past on the wings of pentium chips, modem, laptops and a new addiction called "surfing the web." In a technological heartbeat, me and my little mouse friend were rended obsolete.

Thus, again, the need to interface with today's comprehensive, amazing, but memory-hog programs have booted this simple-minded, non-technorat along yet another stretch of the information highway. And I was dragged, screaming and yelling, into it. Because I knew full well that the upgraded computer road would be fraught with potholes and my life was too busy to take all these detours. Just let me keep computing on what I knew how to operate.

In the end, the promised destination of faster and greater capabilities won out over reluctance to navigate the potholes along the way. Some of 'em are filled, though rough edges and periodic speed bumps pop up on this sometimes-exciting, sometimes aggravating journey. I still stumble across an occasional error message, though they offer more explanation: "An unrecoverable error occurred accessing the drive or cartridge. There is a DMA conflict when using this drive." Or, "Error on file; did not match data."

Later the computer gods relent and pat me on the back: "Your files are safely backed up." I hope it knows. I don't.

And — as if to taunt me even as I wrote this — the power shut down midway through this column and I had to rewrite half of it.

We might have smoothed most of the potholes.

But the souvenir gray hairs I've picked up on the trip are no doubt here for life.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Kathryn Heberling, Falls Creek, wanted a recipe to make deep fried whole onions, sometimes called Texas Twisters or Onion Blossoms. Thanks to Mrs. Vere Woods, Edinboro, for sending a recipe that had been printed in hometown paper. Restaurants generally have a machine that turns an onion into a blossom with one push. But this recipe tells you how to do it by using a cutting board and a sharp paring knife.

Onion Blossom

Cut one end off a large sweet onion, trim just the beard off the other end, leaving that part of the core, making it flat enough so it will sit on a plate.

Then peel off the skin. Turn the onion with the side that had the end cut off down on the cutting board so it will stay put when you make your cuts. You end up with the core side up. Very carefully take your knife and cut from the core down to the middle of the onion, sort of like slicing a pie. Make about 12 cuts, depending on the size of the onion.

Turn it right side up, and very carefully open up the petals. It should resemble a flower in full bloom. It it doesn't open sufficiently, put it into a bowl of cold water until it opens wide.

Heat oil in a deep fryer or a heavy pan.

Dip the onion blossom in seasoned flour. Suggested is seasoned salt, dash of garlic powder and a little cayenne pepper mixed into the flour, then dip into beer batter.

Beer batter:

1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon Old Bay Seasoning
1 egg
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup beer
1 tablespoon melted butter

Mix flour, salt, Old Bay seasoning, baking powder, egg, salt, beer, and butter.

If you have a problem with the batter sticking to the onion, refrigerate the batter until for an hour or more.

When oil reaches 375 degrees, carefully put the onion into the oil until the onion is completely covered. When it is golden brown, it is done, which varies. The onion petals should be a bit on the crunchy side.

Remove the onion from the oil and place on a paper towel to absorb the oil. Turn it upside down so the grease runs out the center of the blossom.

Place on a plate and serve with honey mustard sauce or a dip of your choice. Peel off the individual petals and dip into the sauce. This is a delicious appetizer with a lot of eye appeal.

ANSWER — Pat Elligson, Millers, Md., wanted a recipe for a cabbage slaw that is cooked and combined with a yellow cooked dressing that is creamy. Marlene Heckman from Effort sends this one.

Hot Slaw

Cook 4 cups shredded cabbage half covered with water until done. While cabbage is cooking make dressing by mixing together:

2 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons sugar
1 egg

Add:

3 tablespoons vinegar
½ cup evaporated milk, cream, or regular milk
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix some of the cooked cabbage in the dressing then pour all the dressing into the pot of cabbage and cook until thickened. Stir constantly.

Adding Topsoil To The Garden

All topsoil is not created equal. Purchasing topsoil that is dark, fertile, and friable may not cure all lawn or garden ills. In reality, there are no legal marketing standards for purchasing problem-free topsoil.

Our Garden Soil often becomes the scapegoat for a multitude of lawn and garden difficulties. Comprised of primarily sand, silt, and clay mixed with varying amounts of organic matter, water and air, soil may differ greatly even over distances of just a few feet.

Topsoil, as the name implies, is the thin upper layer at the soil surface. Topsoil is usually darker in color than the subsoil below it because of the addition of organic matter. Virgin topsoils generally range from zero to five inches thick or more. A more functional definition of topsoil is the depth of soil that would ordinarily be mixed in normal cultivation practices, in most cases six to eight inches.

The word Loam refers to several soil textural classes. It refers to the relative amounts of sand, silt, and clay present in a soil. A loam is technically a soil with 7 to 27% clay, 28 to 50% silt, and less than 52% sand. The term loam may be modified further to sandy loam, sandy clay loam, etc.

As you can imagine, topsil varies greatly across Pennsylvania — soils range from heavy clay soils to sandy loams. Most often, the soil mistaken for clay actually contains a large amount of silt. These soils may have a blue-gray color, extreme hardness, cracking, slow drainage, and difficulty in cultivation.

Most of the purchased topsoil comes from local sources. Sometimes, the soil you obtain is not significantly different from soil already present on your property.

Before purcashing topsoil, inspect its source. The soil should be free of trash, stones and other debris. Assess the soil's texture. Unlike a soil's fertility that can be increased by lime and fertilizer, a soil's texture is not readily subject to change.

To estimate the texture of a soil, moisten a small handful. Rub the soil gently between your thumb and forefinger. Use the following chart to determine the soil's textural class.

Loamy sand: Harsh, gritty feel; very slight tendency of the moist soil to stick together when pressed.

Sandy loam: Gritty; may be pressed into a soft mass, if moist.

Fine sandy loam: Mellow and only moderately gritty feel; may be pressed into a firm mass, if moist.

Loam: Mellow, moderately smooth feel; moist soil may be rolled into firm rods; not perceptible sticky.

Silty loam: Smooth and 'floury' feel; moist soil only slightly sticky; readiliy rolled into firm, slender rods.

When buying topsoil, a preconceived notion is the darker the soil, the better. While an increase in darkness is often associated with an increase in organic matter, soils which are very dark or grayish may have been dredged from wetter or swampy areas. These soils are usually very finely textured, acidic, lacking in nutrients, and best avoided.

Purchased topsoils may require lime, fertilizer or both. A soil test kit purchased at the Extension Office can determine the frequency necessary to fertilize your present lawn and garden. A soil's condition can greatly be improved by the addition of compost or organic matter. Aside from increasing and the nutrient and water holding capacity of the soil, organic matter also improves drainage and promotes aggregation of soil particles. As these tiny particles are bound together, a more granular, manageable structure results. Two or 3 inches or organic matter tilled to a depth of 6 to 8 inches is the usual recommendation. Sources of organic matter include compost, peat, manure, leaf-mold, rotted sawdust, and cover crops. Although it is tempting to add sand to a 'heavy' soil, organic matter will ultimately give the best results.

ANSWER — The Greene Co. New York Dairy Princess wanted a recipe for coffee fudge. Thanks to Anna Martin, Denver, for sending a recipe.

Coffee Fudge

2 cups sugar
1 cup coffee
2 tablespoons light Karo syrup
¼ -½ cup chopped English walnuts

Over medium-low heat, dissolve sugar in coffee, stirring constantly with wooden spoon. When mixture begins to boil, add Karo syrup and allow to boil 15-20 minutes without stirring. Test periodically by droppin a few drops in cold water. When this forms a soft ball that you can hold between your fingers. Remove from heat and pour into a bowl. Cool 15-25 minutes. Mix with mixer until the candy becomes light tan and dull. Add nuts and pour into buttered pan. Cool and cut into squares. If candy becomes too stiff to pour into buttered pan, dig it out and pack it in. Cover and allow it to "ripen" for one to two weeks. Keep in cool place, this candy will keep for months.

Blackie Produces Two Black Lambs

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — In the summer of 1995, Blackie Myers, a Suffolk/black Oxford cross bred survived all odds to become a permanent member of the Vaughn and Teresa Myers family.

Blackie was the original sheep of Krista Myers who raised and showed sheep at the Bedford County Fair. Blackie Took a reserve championship in the middleweight class for Krista assuring her a spot on the auction block.

Meanwhile, Krista's younger brother, Kyler, who is now eight, was also doing his part with Blackie. Kyler showed Blackie in the lead line competition. Consequently, the two became fast friends. Such good friends, in fact, that Kyler pleaded with his sister not to sell the lamb at the fair auction.

However, Krista has her sheep projects to make money for college and had little choice. "I had raised Blackie to sell her," she explains. "And, I thought Kyler had to learn the purpose of raising sheep."

But, Kyler said his prayers and his mother, Teresa, spread the story among her friends thus creating a happy ending for all conocerned.

On auction day, bidding was fast and furious. Even "Blackie baaaed" in disbelief as the auctioneeer's gavel hit the block at $4.50 for the 107-pound sheep.

Seems there were a lot of sympathetic bidders in the crowd and high bidder was Kyler's great uncle, Roy Kegg.

Uncle Roy had no great desire for lamb chops and was more than happy to turn Blackie's ownership over to his nephew.

Krista was also grateful to her uncle for the handsome check she received for her college fund.

And, now, the story continues.

This spring, Blackie gave birth to a handsome set of twin sons which made Kyler quite happy. "I didn't want any girls," he says.

One of the twins is going to remain black and, according to Kyler's grandmother, Ada Myers, this could add some funding to Kyler's own college fund.

"Sheep that remain black are rather unusual and, are right now, very much in demand," Ada explains.

For this reason, Blackie's black sheep, may become a part of the Midwest Sale in Sedelia, Missouri, this summer. If so, the lamb will be used for breeding stock.

The other lamb will become the project of Kyler for showing at the Bedford Fair. He hopes it will be "like Mother, like son," and perhaps turn out to be a champion.

Blackie and the twins are presently being housed at the farm of his grandparents but as warm weather approaches, the twins will be moved to the field behind Kyler's house.

As this will be Kyler's first year for showing, he plans to begin working on grooming and showing soon.

Kyler and his dad Vaughn Myers show off Blackie and her twin lambs.

What's cool about possums?
Possums do a lot more than just play dead when they're scared.
The long-tailed critters — officially called opossums — are the oldest mammals in North America. They've survived the longest because they're able to adapt to their environment really well.
Possums didn't move when people took over their land; they learned to live next to the people. They travel as far as one mile a night, looking for food. To their advantage, possums aren't picky eaters — they'll munch on almost anything, including insects, mice, eggs, fruit, berries and even farmer's crops. They'll even dig through people's garbage!
Possums are also the only marsupials native in North America. A marsupial carries it's babies in a pouch. The babies are born blind, without any fur and weigh less than an ounce. They naturally know to crawl to the fur-lined pouch, where they nurse milk from their mother until they are big enough to live on their own.
Full grown possums are about 40 inches long, including their tail, and are about the size of a big house cat. It has 50 teeth — the most of any mammal — and thumbs on its hind feet, which come in really handy when searching for food. And, it uses its hairless, scaly tail to grab onto things — even to hang upside down from a tree!

Wayne Hyde Sculpts Wildlife On Family Farm

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MANNS CHOICE (Bedford Co.) — The bronze sculptured wildlife created by Wayne Hyde brings to mind many adjectives ... magnificent, beautiful, awe inspiring, being only a few.

Growing up on a dairy farm, Wayne loved art from the time he could hold a pencil.

"I suspect I get my talent from my dad," says this 37-year-old with the easy going manner. "When I was little, I was trying to draw the birds on the windowsill and I can still remember him taking my hand and guiding the pencil around the paper."

By the fourth grade, Wayne was doing art projects, such as stencil drawings, for the Chestnut Ridge School District.

"And, I always knew I liked three dimensional art the best," he says now.

After high school he graduated from the Pittsburgh School of Art in advertising art. "I knew that wasn't what I wanted to do," he remembers. "But, I finished the course anyway."

It was his wife who first wanted to move to New Mexico. Exploring the exquisite shops in Santa Fe, and studying the sculptures there, Wayne knew he had found his art form.

Each try with the clay brought him better results. Wayne found a job firefighting with the Bureau of Land Protection in New Mexico and worked on his sculptures in the off-seasons. "Often I sculpture what I had seen in the wild," he says.

Other ideas came from nature photographs. When he landed a job with "Wildlife Habitat Improvement," ideas ran rampant.

A divorce brought Wayne back to Bedford County and the family farm where he now fills the old farm house with various stages of his work.

"I really missed the farm," Wayne says, admitting that he doesn't really miss the dairy cows which have been sold.

However he and his dad continue to farm 275 acres raising various crops as well as black Angus and Hereford beef cattle.

When the farm work is finished, Wayne is ready to sculpture and sometimes works into the wee hours of the morning. His work begins with a big hunk of clay. Using high school welding skills, he builds a steel armature which holds the clay together as he works. He watches wildlife videos, often freezing a frame to capture an animal's pose or expression.

Once the scultpure meets with his satisfaction (usually three or four months later), Wayne carefully packs his clay sculptures into boxes and straps them into the car with the seat belts. Then, it's off to the foundry in Dublin, Texas.

"I could never trust these to be shipped," Wayne explains. "I have even built a box which is hooked up the air conditioner in my car to keep the clay from melting."

"There are only a few foundries in the United States and this one is especially good," Wayne explains. Bronze which is 85% copper and 15% tin is heated to 2,300 degrees before being poured into the molds.

Once the mold is made, artisans at the foundry, as well as Wayne put the finishing touches on his wildlife creations.

Wayne adds the finishing touches to one of his sculptures while at the foundry in Texas.

No more than 20 to 30 sculptures of any one mold is made before being destroyed. By doing this, he is able to offer limited editions with prices of his work ranging from $750 to $3,500.

Work is sold in specialty art shops in Santa Fe, Jackson's Hole, Wyoming, and in a few cities in Texas.

"Marketing is my main problem," Wayne admits. "I know my work is good but I would much rather create sculptures than market. However, one complements the other and I'm working on my weaker points."

Wayne did a show at the Holiday Inn in Jackson's Hole last summer and will be a part of a wildlife show in the Poconos within the next few weeks.

And, when he has a few minutes, his favorite past time is gazing over the hills of Bedford County as the Hyde farm offers a magnificent view of the surrounding farmlands.

Each sculpture Wayne forms is a limited edition of his work.

ANSWER — Cindy Eshleman asks for a source of unusual trees or seeds, such as a Chinese tallow tree. Thanks to Anne Van Atler, Woodbine, Md., for writing that two strains of the trees are available for $4.95 and $5.95 from Forest Farm, 99 Tetherow Rd., Williams, OR 97544-9599 or phone (541) 846-7269. A 428-page catalog lists trees, shrubs, and woody plants available and costs $4.

However seeds are not listed in the catalog. According to "Manual of Woody Landscape Plants," by Michael Dirr, the seeds are easy grow. The tallow tree seems to have become almost pestiferous in the coastal plains from South Carolina to Florida and Louisiana. Trees may be injured if the temperature drops below 0 degrees F.

Atler writes that Cindy may be interested in Evodice danielle, called bee bee tree, which blooms about four weeks from the middle of July to the middle of August in northern Maryland. It is covered with honey bees from sun-up until sundown even during lightly falling rain.

ANSWER — Sally McGrath sends in an answer for a question that wasn't asked because whenever someone needs the answer to this question, they won't want to wait two weeks or longer for an answer. She found out the hard way that this solution works if pets are sprayed by skunks.

Krebaum's Home Skunk Remedy

Put on goggles or other eye protection. In a bucket, mix:

1 quart (0.95 L) of 3% hydrogen peroxide, H202

¼ cup (60 mL) baking soda (sodium bicarbonate), NaHCO3.

1 teaspoon (5 mL) of liquid dishwashing detergent

Stir the ingredients briefly. The solution will fizz as the hydrogen peroxide decomposes and releases bubbles of oxygen.

Have a friend hold the smelly pet in a washtub while you scrub it with a soft brush. Rinse the pet with tap water. You may need to repeat the treatment on your friend.

Model Horse Show Attracts Collectors

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — When the Saddle Cinches 4-H Horse Club held its first open-to-the-public show last year, it didn't expect to have to provide stabling for over two thousand horses. But that's what happened. Thankfully, though, club members had done their homework before the event and were able to cope with the unexpected crowd of animals. In fact, they were so well organized that they managed to fit all the equines into the basement of Lancaster's Farm and Home Center building.

All of this was possible because the event was the club's First Annual Model Horse Show, and the animals were plastic sculptures less than a foot high. Still, accommodating the estimated 2,000 horse models — and more than 50 of their owners — present at the March 1996 show wasn't easy. Entrants were able to stow their boxes of models on rows of assigned tables and prepare their prized equines for the show ring, but despite Saddle Cinches' best efforts, space was a little tight. This year, however, the show promises to be bigger and better in more ways than one.

The Second Annual Saddle Cinches 4-H Model Horse Show will be held on Saturday, April 26, beginning at 10:00 a.m. at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster, just off PA's Route 72. Slated for the event: more space and a greater number of classes! Model horse collectors from all over the area and — if this year's crowd in anything like last year's — from as far away as Maryland, Delaware, and New Jersey, will have the opportunity to show their prized models to top placings and championships.

If you're new to the world of model horse competition, you may be wondering how plastic ponies can compete in anything! The answer is that model showing, a horse-loving hobbyists' pastime, replicates a real horse show on a small scale. The collectors' entries are lined up on a tabletop (the "show ring"); then their owners stand back and watch anxiously as the judge inspects the animals and decides who will receive the first through sixth place ribbons. Models are entered in breed classes, where they're evaluated against the other "animals" present and against, say, the appearance of the ideal Morgan of Clydesdale horse. Showmanship classes are judged upon the model's condition (quality of paint job, freedom from scratches or breaks), on the tack it wears (a scaled-down halter or bridle, like that needed to lead a real horse, is required), and on its position (as a showmanship class, in the real horse world, requires the handle to pose the animal properly before the judge). It is the performance classes, however, which showcase all of the creativity and realism which model showing can offer.

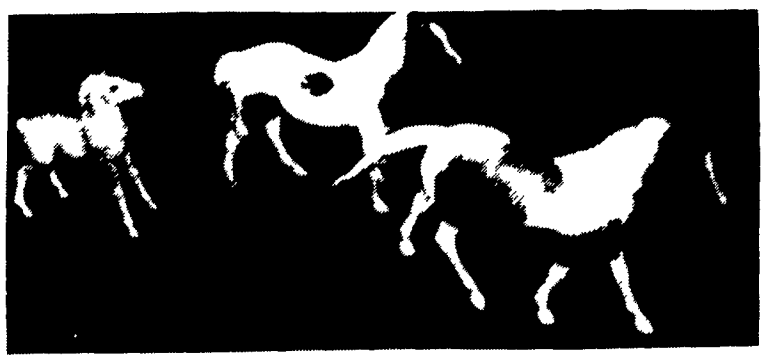
"Performance" means, simply, that the horse must be doing something, and model performance classes are packed with examples of what a tiny equine can appear to be doing, be it racing down the track at Churchill Downs, separating a cow from the herd, or clearing a jump.

In order to compete, models are outfitted in miniature replicas of saddles, bridles, and other equipment, most of it made by hand. Readying a model for performance competition requires the owner to know the rules and regulations of each event — from the type of saddle a horse ought to wear, to the colors in which to paint diminutive jumps. Costume classes, too, are one of the highlights of any model horse event. Here, you might see the tiny horses decked out in silver-draped parade saddles a la Roy Rogers, wearing the brightly colored tassels of Arab chieftans' mounts, or carrying miniature knights in armor into battle. The number of variations is limited only by the contestant's imagination.

Model horse showing, then, can be something of a spectator sport as well as a hobbyist's passion. Observers and competitoros alike are welcome at the Saddle Cinches event: between classes, visitors will be able to purchase handmade tack and both new and vintage models from vendors, and enjoy homemade barbecue and baked goods courtesy of the 4-H food stand. The show's main attraction, however, will be the model horse signing. 1997 marks the 50th anniversary of the publication of author Marguerite Henry's Newbery Honor-winning pony tale, Misty of Chincoteague. The book is still in print; and Breyer, the leading name in the model horse business, has released a gift set of models in honor of Misty's enduring popularity. Misty II, featured in the set, is the real-life granddaughter of the equine star of the book. She and her daughters, Black mist and Twister, are owned by Kendy Allen of Manheim, who will be on hand to sign Misty II gift sests for a $3 fee at the show. Models signed by the owner of the real animals are highly collectible, and visitors are welcome to either bring a Misty set to be signed or purchase one from Mrs. Allen at the show.

Junior and senior champions and reserve champions will receive rosettes and a Breyer model. Pre-entry fee of $10 due by April 19, or $12 on show day enters 27 classes. Make checks payable to Saddle Cinches 4-H Club. To receive more information, or to register for the show, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Kirsten Kauffman, 761 Hess Rd., Elizabethtown, PA 17022. Questions? Call (717) 367-5295 evenings.

Kirsten Kauffman prepares for the upcoming Saddle Cinces 4-H Model Horse Show to be held April 26 at the Farm In Home Center in Lancaster. Model horses are judged the same as live horses according to their breed and type. In addition showmanship and performance competition will be held.



In honor of the 50th anniversary of the publication of author Marguerite Henry's Newberry honor-winning pony tale, "Misty of Chincoteague," a gift set of Breyer models of Misty II and daughters Black Mist and Twister will be sold and signed by owner Kendy Allen of Manheim.

Explore Ephrata Cloister History

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — In times when cellular phones and e-mail are rapidly expanding the world, the simplicity of paper and ink as a form of communication may seem a bit old-fashioned. Yet paper has served as the medium of exchanging ideas and recording our heritage for centuries. The historic Ephrata Cloister will offer the chance to discover more about paper and its role in history during the new interpretive program Pages of History, Saturday, April 12 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Throughout the day, visitors will have the opportunity to try a little paperwork, 18th century style!

"By the early 1740s, the Ephrata Cloister had become a complete publishing center, with its own paper mill, printing press, and book bindery," notes museum educator Michael Showalter. In addition, the Cloister introduced the Pennsylvania German decorative writing called Fraktur to America. "Pages of History gives visitors a first-hand look and a chance to experience the crafts associated with paper," adds Showalter.

Richard Aldorasi of the Philadelphia Handmade Paper Company will demonstrate and explain the traditional techniques of turning linen rags into fine quality paper, just as the Brothers of Ephrata Cloister did two centuries ago. Craftsperson Claressa Resh, who specializes in the reproduction of Ephrata Fraktur writing and drawing, will offer information on the art form. Printer Lee Haines will demonstrate the printing process used by the Cloister members to produce impressive books and pamphlets. Anthony Haverstick of the Water Steet Bindery will discuss the methods of book binding which the Brothers employed. Not only will these talented people share their knowledge with visitors, but invite viewers to try the crafts for themselves. Deocrative paper work will also be featured in the Museum Store with Fraktur artist Myrtle Shreiner and paper cutter Neil Haring offering insight to their crafts. The Museum Store also offers a wide range of items relating to paper, including products of the craftsmen demonstrating during the day.

All activities, including guided tours of the historic site, are included with admission to the Cloister. Admission is $4 for children (age 6-12), $5.50 for Senior Citizens (age 60 and above), and $6 for adults (age 13-59). Ephrata Cloister Associates members receive reduced admission.

Founded in 1732 by Conrad Beissel, Ephrata Cloister is one of America's earliest communal societies. Gathered in unique medieval style buildings, the community consisted of celibate Brothers and Sisters, and a married congregation of families. The life of the celibate members was characterized by severe discipline and self-denial of comfort. At the zenith of the community in the 1740s and 1750s, about 300 members worked and worshiped at the Cloister.

Following the death of the last celibate member in 1813 the married congregation formed the German Seventh Day Baptist Church. Members continued to live and worship at the Cloister until 1934. In 1941 the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania acquired the historic site and began a program of restoration and interpretation. Today, nine original buildings are part of a 28-acre complex open for visitors.

Ephrata Cloister is located in Ephrata Borough, Lancaster County on Route 322 at the intersection with Route 272. The historic site is open Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. For more information, call (717) 733-6600.

Attend Backyard Composting Workshop

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Did you know that approximately 30% of your household waste is organic material that can be recycled in your own backyard?

Leaves, grass clippings, other yard wastes, and food scraps, are all materials that will naturally decompose through a process called composting. If you have considered composting but haven't gotten around to making or buying a bin, now is your chance to learn more about the topic and get a coupon toward a bin.

Montgomery County residents who attend a Bin in Your Neighborhood (BIN) Composting Workshop, will learn how to cut down on yard work, help reduce disposal costs, and cut back on the amount of materials being landfilled or incinerated each year. In exchange for attending a BIN Workshop, Montgomery County residents will be given a $25 BIN Coupon which can be redeemed at participating stores throughout Montgomery County, or through participating mail-order companies.

The first BIN Workshop will be held on Saturday, April 19, from 11:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., as part of the Perkiomen Valley Watershed Association's Earth Day celebration. The workshop will take place at the Old Mill House in the Central Perkomen Valley Park, Plank Road, Schwenksville, followed by a tour of a composting demonstration site at the Earth Day celebration. Workshop participants are then welcome to enjoy the Earth Day festivities.

The Recycling Education Program of Penn State Cooperative Extension, Montgomery County, will be teaching the BIN Workshop. The coupon give-away for compost bins is sponsored by a grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection. Only Montgomery County residents are eligible to receive the coupons.

Pre-registration for BIN Workshops is required. To pre-register or to find out about other BIN Workshops, call the Recycling Education Program at (610) 489-4315.

Auction To Benefit Erie 4-H

ERIE (Erie Co.) — The eighteenth annual auction to benefit the Erie County 4-H/Youth Development Program will be held Saturday, April 26, beginning at 10 a.m.

The auction will be held indoors in the 4-H/FFA Youth Arena, at the Waterford Fairgrounds, located just south of Waterford on Route 19. Doors will open at 8:30 a.m. for inspection of merchandise. Seating and refreshments will be available.

The auction will feature a wide variety of new household and garden items, plants and shrubs, gift certificates, and services donated by area busineses and individuals. In addition, used items in working condition will be donated by the county's many 4-H families. Also for sale will be a number of hand-crafted items and baked goods.

According to Robert Soltis, volunteer co-chair of this year's event, all proceeds from the auction will directly benefit the county's more than 2,400 4-H members. Funds raised will be used to provide these young people with scholarships enabling them to attend a number of leadership and citizenship development activities, to help cover the costs of conducting the annual 4-H Fair, or to provide a variety of other 4-H programs and opportunities to the county's young people.

All items will be sold by Auctioneer Paul Holtz who has volunteered his professional services to 4-H again this year. He will be assisted by Bill Bellis of Franklin, an apprentice auctioneer and Venango County 4-H members. Terms of the auction are strictly cash and carry.

Donations of items for the Auction will be accepted through the day of the sale. Those wishing to donate items may contact the extension office at (814) 825-0900, or Robert Soltis at (814) 756-5334.

University Of Delaware Holds Family Ag Day

NEWARK, Del. — Bring the family to Ag Day on Saturday, April 19, when students from the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware introduce the community to the wide world of agriculture. The ever-popular annual event will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., on the grounds of Townsend and Worrilow halls on South College Avenue in Newark.

Adults can stock up on bedding plants and learn to identify pests and weeds, while children can find out about chicks and blue hens, ride a pony or a hay wagon, milk a cow, pet a piglet or climb on a tractor.

Ag Day is a virtual gardener's heaven, with two distinct plant sales. Plant and soil sciences students will sell annual bedding plants, both vegetables and flowers, that they have grown. Staff, students and volunteers will offer unusal perennials, trees and shrubs at the UD Botanic Gardens plant sale in the Fischer Greenhouse.

Now in its 21st year, Ag Day is organized each spring by students of the college. Activities, displays and refreshments are provided by a variety of student groups, including the Equestrian Club, Wildlife Club and service fraternities. From designing the annual Ag Day T-shirt to grilling chicken and hot dogs, student organizers keep the event fresh and exciting.

Admission and parking are free.

Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Banquet

The Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Achievement Banquet was held recently in Newburg. Several 4-H members were recognized for their efforts.

•Outstanding 4-H Dairy Member. The Outstanding 4-H Dairy member for 1996 was Rebecca Cornman. Becky has just completed her seventh year in the Cumberland County Dairy Club and is the daughter of Deb and Steve Cornman of Boiling Springs. This past year she exhibited the champion and reserve champion Jersey at the 1996 County 4-H Roundup.

She kept records and showed five project animals and completed Level 1 and Leadership. Becky is also a member of the Flying Fingers 4-H Club. She has served as a counselor of Ag Service Camp/Ag Day Camp and most recent as teen leader at the Farm Safety Day Camp. Rebecca has been elected as president of the Countywide Club for 1997.

•First Year Dairy Member Award Shared in 1996. The First Year 4-H Dairy Member Award is primarily based on interest shown, attendance, quality of project work, scores of roundup, and participating at workshops, roundups, and meetings. This year the club had a tie and will award two equal awards to Gregory Hammond and Jason Nailor.

Gregory Hammond, son of Sharon and Guy Hammond, has been a very active member, including attending dairy workshop, junior dairy bowl activities, and presented a demonstration at a 4-H meeting. Gregory showed two animals at the 4-H Dairy Roundup. Greg had a perfect attendance since he joined.

Jason Nailor's first year in the Dairy Club was quite eventful. He was an active member and scored well in the basic areas of the first year dairy member criteria. He exhibited the champion Guernsey and reserve champion Milking Shorthorn at the 4-H Roundup. Jason is the son of Joanne and Dennis Nailor. Both of these young members were involved in the club meetings and activities.

•Achievement Award Winners. The Achievement Award is based primarily on the 4-H member's achievement form score. The record is a complete history of the 4-H member's career to date. Winner this year was Rebecca Cornman, daughter of Deb and Steve Cornman, Boiling Springs. Becky is starting her eighth year in the Countywide Club and is club president. This past year, Becky participated as a member of the county's dairy judging team at both State Days and Penn-All American Judging Forum.

•4-H dairy leaders were recognized by special gifts from the County 4-H Program. Those recognized include Kathy Walton, Carlisle, 10 years; Sharon Hammond, Mt. Holly Springs; Mark Naugle, Carlisle; and John Ocker, Shippensburg, for 25 years of service.

•Special recognition was given to three members of the 4-H Dairy Club for completing 11 years of club work. Those recognized include Mandy Naugle, Carlisle; Besty Walton, Carlisle; and Heath Ocker, Shippensburg.

Zetor's Low Prices Used To Be The Quickest Way For Dealers To Make Sales.

But Zetor-Power has taken over as the most important selling point. Zetor's up-to-date engineering and heavy cast iron chassis provide a balanced power-to-weight ratio that means a Zetor tractor does more with less horsepower!

Zetor tractors still pull their own weight after 16 years...twice as long as most American tractors.

And all Zetor tractors come with a two year warranty which underscores its worldwide reputation for building quality tractors that last, and more and more farmers are quick to agree.

Organizers Announce Dates For Rib Cook-Off

YORK (York Co.) — Rib lovers throughout central Pennsylvania can make plans to attend the "summer's biggest barbecue" — the fourth annual Keystone National Rib Cook-Off and Music Fest — Thursday, July 24 through Sunday, July 27 at the York Fairgrounds.

Even chairman Tony Dobrosky said, "We are pleased to report that the 1996 Rib Cookoff was very successful, proving that his event has become a summer tradition for York and the surrounding communities ... one that the entire family can enjoy."

Highlights of the four-day fun-fest include more than a dozen "ribrateurs" selling their barbecued specialites to the public and competing in a judge competition, and non-stop musical entertainment that is sure to set fire to the main stage with performances by national and regional talent.

Proceeds from the rib cook-off will benefit the Pennsylvania Livestock Association, a nonprofit organization that represents the total livestock association at the state level, provides leadership in education, promotion, research and legislation, as well as encourages and supports youth activities.

The Pennsylvania Livestock Association is looking for volunteers for the fourth annual rib cook-off. Dobrosky said, "Volunteers are needed to help make the event a success. We have a need for volunteers to serve as ticket takers, concession stand workers, table cleaners and runners."

Anyone who is interested in volunteering or for additional information about the rib cook-off, call (610) 767-5026.

Japanese Companies Pledge To use HACCP-Based System

TOKYO — Japanese companies pledged at a binational food safety symposium in Tokyo to take new steps to improve the safety of food products in Japan. The symposium was organiced by the U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF) with USDA and U.S. industry support.

More than 200 industry leaders from Japan and the United States took part in the event. Much of the discussion revolved around the seven principles of "HACCP" and the important role that these principles play in food safety. HACCP is an acronym for Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points and is the guiding influence in the U.S. meat safety and inspection system.

Almost three quarters (72 percent) of the Japanese companies that attended the symposium said they now planned to pursue the implementation of HACCP-based systems to improve product safety. In addition, 52 percent of the companies in attendance said they were more confident in the safety of U.S. meat as a result of the information they received during the symposium.

"Our members from the production and packing sectors spoke in great detail about what their companies are doing to produce safe meat," said Philip Seng, president and CEO, USMEF. "Then leading companies from Japan's transportation, distribution and retail sectors presented information about specific programs they have instituted to protect Japanese consumers and to further ensure the safety of U.S. meat as it works its way down the food safety chain to the Japanese consumer."

According to Seng, the E. coli O157:H7 outbreak last year in Japan has focused industry attention in Japan on food safety and the need to restore consumer confidence in the safety of imported meat. Although the cause of the E. coli O157:H7 outbreak was never identified, Seng noted that Japanese consumers have become more concerned about the safety of many imported food items, including meat. He added that none of the cases of E. coli O157:H7 poisoning were attributed to imported meat.

"Food safety will be a defining issue for the U.S. red meat industry well into the next century," said Seng. "As an industry, we need to come together and work with our trading partners around the world to identify food safety risks and deal with them before they have a chance to become real problems."

The companies in Japan that are handling U.S. meat are becoming more committed to food safety, observed Seng. "I was very encouraged to see that many of Japan's largest importers, retailers, and food processing companies were represented by their top-level executives at the food safety symposium."

One of USMEF's primary goal in 1997, explained Seng, is to build on the progress that USMEF has made with the Japanese trade and to reach out to consumers with a strong, credible food safety message. "With support from the Japanese trade — particularly retailers, distributors and food manufacturing companies — the U.S. industry will have the foundation it needs to be most effective in targeting its food safety messages at Japanese consumers."

Key presenters at the food safety symposium were Dr. Kunio Morita of Japan's Ministry of Health and Welfare, John Reddington of USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service, Dr. Phillip Tarr of the University of Washington, Merlyn Carlson of the Nebraska Beef Council, Duncan Highmark of Purina Mills, Stan Miller of Excel Corporation and Dr. Russell Cross of the International Meat and Poultry HACCP Alliance. The program also included Japanese industry spokesmen from the retail, distribution and transportation sectors.

New Animal Drug Distribution System

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Groups representing the veterinary, feed manufacturing and distribution, pharmaceutical and animal production industries have joined forces to educate people within their respective business sectors about a new federally approved system for distributing new theraputic feed medications.

The groups formed an educational coalition about the new system. It is called the Veterinary Feed Directive Coalition.

Based out of Des Moines, Iowa, the coalition has issued a statement in support of the new system that, "... the new process willehnace animal health and food safety by ensuring veterinary diagnosis of animal disease in order to feed Veterinary Feed Directive medicated feeds."

As part of the Animal Drug Availability Act of 1996, the U.S. Congress established an alternative to prescription status for new antimicrobial feed additives, the first of which are to become available this spring.

The system of dispensing medications in feed is through a "veterinary feed directive" (VFD) — a process whereby veterinarians provide "directives" for adding the medications to the feeds, and serve in a supervisory capacity to ensure proper use.

Approved VFD medicated feeds may be distributed to producers in premix form or they may be distributed as ready-to-use feed.

To obtain a VFD feed product, producers must contact a veterinarian with whom a valid veterinarian-client-patient relationship exists.

The veterinarian, upon diagnosing an animal health problem, issues a signed, multi-part VFD form supplied by the VFD product's sponsor authorizing the use of the medicated animal feed.

The form would also contain detailed instructions for mixing or diluting VFD medicated feeds; identify the species, location and number of animals to be treated; specify the length of time the product may be fed; and specify withdrawal requirements as well as any cautionary statements.

The producer would then present the signed VFD form to his or her feed supplier who would manufacture and distribute the product. The veterinarian, producer and feed supplier must retain their copies of the form for a minimum of two years.

The VFD Coalition is to be distributing a variety of educational materials to producer, veterinary, animal pharmaceutical and feed industry group members during the winter and spring of 1997, to ensure thorough understanding of the process of obtaining and using VFD medicated feeds in advance of the introduction of approved VFD drugs.

For three days in the beginning of March, farmers from all over the Northeast enjoyed deep discounts on all the products Lapp's offers.

Lapp's had an array of door prizes and a grand prize of $2,000 in Jamesway parts to offer. Wilmer Hostetter & Sons of Oxford, won the grand prize. Third prize, a J-Star jacket and hat, went to Raymond Welsh.

Dealer Attends Phoenix Event

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Douglas Ayers, Bradley Hershey, Larry Miller and others from C.B. Hoober & Son in Intercourse, Pa., recently attended the Case IH Desert Vantage Point business meetings and training sessions which drew more than 3,000 Case IH dealers, customers and Case Corporation personnel to Phoenix.

The eight attendees were also among the first ever to see the new Case IH products introduced at the event, including the all-new MX Series Maxxum® tractors, which feature increased horsepower and PTO-torque rise, fewer service requirements and an improved operator environment.

Desert Vantage Point also included training sessions on key agronomic issues, such as precision farming and residue management, to help increase Case IH dealers' role as agricultural experts, ready to help their customers increase yields and profits.

"These meetings are a way for Case Corporation to further build its relationships with Case IH dealers and customers, thus helping to contribute to our shared success," said James Irwin, vice president, North American agricultural equipment sales. "They are a way for Case to demonstrate that we are partners with our dealers and customers.

More than 3,000 Case IH dealers, customers and Case Corporation personnel gathered in Phoenix recently to witness the introduction of the all-new MX Series Maxxum® tractors (shown here), which feature increased horsepower and PTO-torque rise, fewer service requirements and an improved operator environment. Douglas Ayers, Bradley Hershey, Larry Miller and others from C.B. Hoober & Son in Intercourse were among the first ever to see the new tractors.

"For instance, it is virtually unprecedented in the agricultural-equipment industry to introduce new products to dealers and customers simultaneously, yet that's what we're doing with the new MX Series tractors," Irwin said. "Since Case IH product development is customer driven, it simply makes sense to share the end result with farmers and dealers alike."

The new tractors, which commanded a great deal of attention at the Phoenix event, will no doubt attract attention at Case IH dealerships throughout the U.S. and Canada, Irwin said. Contact C.B. Hoober & Son regarding local availability.

Farm Credit, R&W Equipment Team Up

The winner, drawn from candidates tilling at least 100 acres, was awarded with free use of a tractor sponsored by York Farm Credit, ACA and R&W Equipment. Richard Yeager, Carlisle, won the use of a new Ford New Holland tractor for one week. More than 150 people participated in the Corn Clinic meeting in January.

Also, Harvey Newswanger, Jr., of Shippensburg, was the winner of a $75 gift certificate from Tractor Supply Co. for the "under 100 acres farmed" category.

Herbicide Approved

WILMINGTON, Del. — U.S. corn growers now can tell their crop protection material dealers to "Give me Liberty™" Herbicide.

A new product from AgrEvo® USA Company, Liberty Herbicide has received EPA registration for use on corn. Liberty Herbicide will provide growers exceptionally fast control of a broad spectrum of yield-robbing weeds.

"This clears the way for corn growers throughout the corn belt to apply Liberty Herbicide this spring on their first crop of Liberty Link™ Seed corn hybrids that are engineered for resistance to the active ingredient in Liberty," said Jeff Springsteen, AgrEvo's market manager for Liberty Herbicide. "Liberty will eliminate the competition from weeds without harm to the Liberty Seed corn."

More than 95 seed companies have become Liberty Link Seed partners with AgrEvo and already are offering more than 180 transgenic corn hybrids for purchase, according to Springsteen.

AgrEvo discovered a naturally occurring gene that conveys resistance to Liberty Herbicide's active ingredient, glufosinate-ammonium, and then made the genetics available to seed, companies that wanted to market Liberty Link hybrids, according to Springsteen.

"The Liberty Link technology and AgrEvo's approach to the market are very marketing friendly," Springsteen said. "AgrEvo will not charge a technology fee or insist upon any restrictive contracts from growers who plant Liberty Link Seed hybrids. Seed companies will set their own pricing and terms for their products. Because of the large number of seed partners in the Liberty Link System, growers will be able to plant all Liberty Link Seed if they wish, yet still vary their hybrids with different maturity ranges or parent lines."

Seed companies typically have transferred the Liberty Link gene into some of their best-performing hybrid lines because the addition of the resistance gene does not alter the yield, disease-resistance or other agronomic qualities of those hybrids.

"Because Liberty Herbicide is a non-selective herbicide that provides control of an extremely broad spectrum of broadleaf weeds and grasses, including corn, Liberty must be used on Liberty Link Seed hybrids," Springsteen said. "But that's about the only restriction.

"Liberty Herbicide provides the freedom to choose application timing, treatments and systems that best fit each individual field and each grower's crop management preferences," Springsteen added. "The flexibility of this herbicide fits current agricultural trends: site-specific farming, prescriptive weed control, reduced tillage, high potential seed genetics, and weed resistance management."

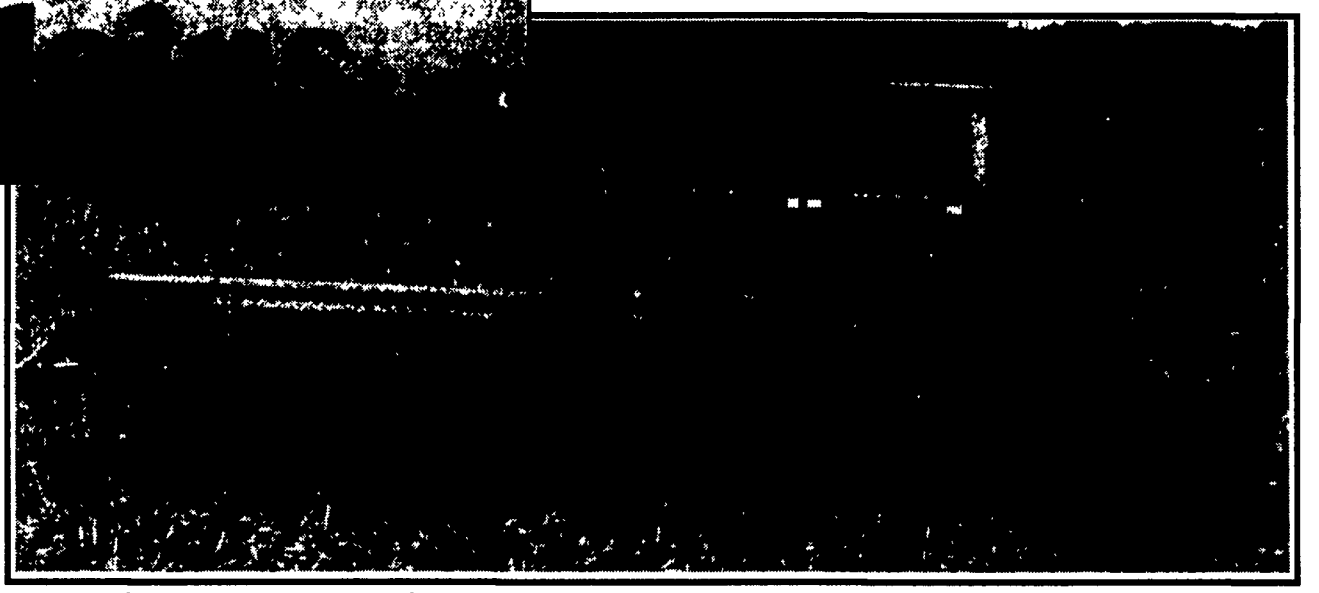
SPECIALISTS IN THE SCIENCE OF SEED PLACEMENT



The successful germination of any seed depends on the enviroment in which you place it... and increasingly, that environment includes a world of residue. Great Plains Drills have been shaped by years of experience. We've been building min-till drills since 1981 and no-till drills since 1982. Regardless of which tillage practice or condition you face, accurate seed placement is important. Every Great Plains Drill seeds with a time-proven technique we call the Science of Seeding.

GREAT PLAINS DRILLS SEED IN NO-TIL AND CONVENTIONAL TILLAGE CONDITIONS...

THE LITTLE THINGS MAKE THE DIFFERENCE

1 DOUBLE DISC OPENERS with PARALLEL LINKAGE available on most models

2 SPEED-CHANGE GEARBOX makes seeding rate changes easier

3 DIAL-A-DEPTH system makes changing planting depth quick & easy

4 FLUTED SEED CUPS - a Great Plains exclusive - deliver outstanding accuracy. Whether the seed you're drilling is small, large or fragile, the Great Plains time-proven metering system will deliver the rate you choose evenly and gently - without scuffing.

DRILLS AVAILABLE FOR SPRING DELIVERY We're taking Orders Now!

Reaching the top is easier if you have the AGCO Allis 7600 tractor pulling you up

Make Your Way Up Your Own Corporate Ladder.

The 89 PTO hp engine has the power to muscle through most any job This multi-purpose, row-crop tractor has a standard synchronized transmission with 24 forward and 12 reverse speeds. For your convenience, you can choose between the cab or rops with an optional canopy.

- A direct air-cooled diesel engine powers the tractor and delivers maximum strength through the full speed range So you're able to get more work done using less fuel, doing less shifting and requiring less effort to operate the tractor
- This also lets you match engine power to ground speeds for more efficient field work.
- The AWD models feature true centerline drive shaft for more efficient power transfer and less maintenance.
- Like always, every AGCO Allis tractor comes with a 4-year/ 4,000-hour warranty that's backed by your dealer

To see what the 7600 tractor can do for you, just stop by and see us. You'll be surprised at how fast you'll climb

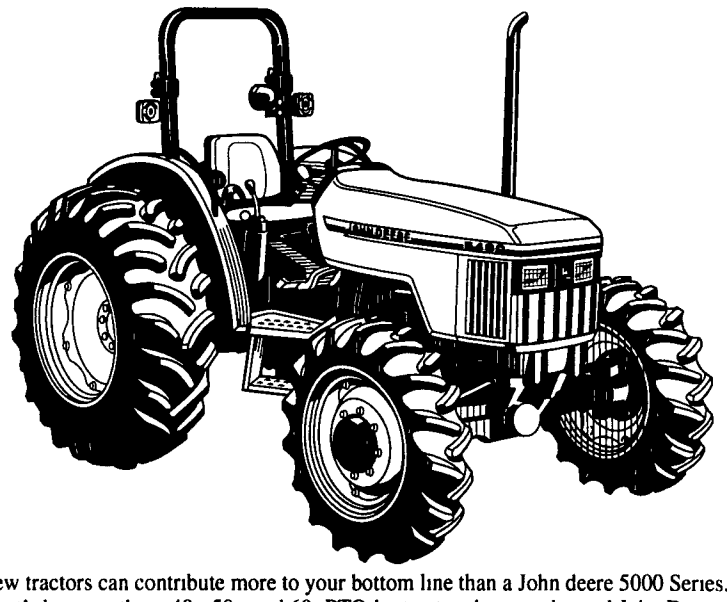
What the cost-conscious drive to work



Few tractors can contribute more to your bottom line than a John deere 5000 Series. That's because these 40-, 50-, and 60- PTO-hp tractors have traditional John Deere reliability and operating ease. And prices to challenge well-known domestics and imports. Plus, a long list of standard features like wet-disk brakes, 9-speed collar-shift transmission, planterary final drives, and power steering. Test drive one soon.

Vitamix Makes Antibiotics Obsolete!
You Can Sell The Milk
When You Use Vitamix Instead Of Antibiotics

A dairyman's helper gave a cow an antibiotic and forgot to make a written record of it. He then went on vacation and for the next five days, the milk from 900 cows went down the drain!! The $42,000.00 lost would have bought enough Vitamix to last for years and years for that dairyman's whole herd.

You can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix. Vitamix is a mixture of vitamins, minerals, enzymes, electrolytes, and proteins, especially calculated to feed the immune system. Vitamix is the result of over 20 years research and over 20,000 feeding experiments. Vitamixingredients are so micro pulverized and easily digestible that some of them melt in the mouth and are absorbed into the bloodstream while the cow is still chewing her feed. Her organs increase the output of antibodies (white cells) within minutes, and can often double the output of antibodies within one hour after consuming Vitamix, and you can get Vitamix without a prescription. Vitamix is all natural. You just put Vitamix in the feed whenever there are symptoms of a contagious disease or infection.

The cow's immune system can cure any and every kind of contagious disease and infection quicker, safer, more consistently than any medical drug in the world when you support the immune system. The immune system is the only real defense. I keep cows and horses for feeding experiments.The last time I used an antibiotic was in 1984 and haven't lost a cow, calf or horse since I quit using antibiotics.

Any time any human or animal gets a contagious disease or any kind of infection, it is for one reason, and one reason only; The immune system failed to do an adequate job of defending against it. In other words, the immune system let you down.

Every time you use antibiotics, sulfa drug or an immune stimulator; you weaken the immune system. See the Physicians Desk Reference (PDR) for more information on the side effects of antibiotics. The information in the PDR was provided by the drug companies that make the drugs as required by law.

Shouldn't we be feeding the immune system instead? Support the immune system. Their lives and health depend on it. Feed Vitamix every time for every contagious disease or infection.

Vitamix is the best procedure in the world for Mastitis. It is quick and easy and you can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix.

How long does it take when you take the "Support the immune system approach?" I have seen calves that were down, had high fever, bloody scours and were dehydrated. One needed help to hold its head up. The only thing I gave them was Vitamix and water. In three hours, I had to run them down and get them cornered to give the Vitamix. Dairymen tell me that Vitamix is faster than anything else they ever used.

When there is a serious case of anything contagious or infectious; I give Vitamix once an hour for three hours, or until they are back on their feed and doing noticeably better. I continue Vitamix six times daily for a few days. Vitamix typically costs only $2 to $3 a day for a cow (less for a calf). The total cost for one cow for one illness is typically $8 to $10 from start to finish.

Vitamix costs less than antibiotics, and you can get it without a prescription. Vitamix is completely drug free!!! You can sell the milk when you use Vitamix !!! (When you use antibiotics, you pour the milk out for 5 days, sometimes more. You risk making a mistake and pouring all your milk out for 5 days or more.)

You save money Every Time you use Vitamix. Get some Vitamix now to keep on hand. Use Vitamix as soon as you see symptoms of anything contagious or infectious. You will know you did the right thing within hours.

Preventing and curing all contagious disease and infections boils down to this. Increasing the capacity to produce white cells (Antibodies). All white cells are made by the bone marrow. Antibiotics cause "bone marrow depression" thereby reducing its ability to make white cells to fight diseases and infection (See Physician's Desk Reference Book [PDR]).

I have done over 20,000 feeding experiments on healing the body, and have yet to find an incurable contagious disease or infection.

Why sit around waiting for a miracle? You can order Vitamix right now. Miracles are great and they do happen now and then; if you wait around one might happen for you. But the immune system is a miracle. You can order Vitamix today and keep it on hand, then you will have it when you need it.

Vitamix ...when you need a miracle. The best source of information about Vitamix is people who have used it. Ask a friend about Vitamix.

Suburban Sprawl Could Mean Bad Tidings For Farmland, Inner City

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Suburban sprawl can have substantial impact on the land surrounding a city. And in states like Ohio, with 16 urban centers, urban expansion can quickly take its toll on masses of prime farmland.

In the past 40 years, 11 counties surrounding Youngstown, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus and Akron have lost more than half of the farmland because of urban influences.

"What happens in the suburbs and inner cities affect what happens to farmland just as much as what happens in rural areas," said Tim Lawrence, Ohio State University Extension Community Development agent for the Darby Watershed project.

Farmland preservation and development aren't mutually exclusive, Lawrence said. He is one of the organizers of the upcoming conference, Growth & the Future, A Land Use Conference for All of Ohio.

Cities are becoming vacant as farmland is converted to housing developments. Even with only a moderate rise in populations, people have greatly expanded the actual area they use to live, Lawrence said. People need to find win/win solutions that allow for development without losing the best agricultural soils.

A look at Ohio land use trends sheds light on the extent of the situation. Allen Prindle, an associate professor of economics at Otterbein University in Westerville, compiled trends data for the Ohio Farmland Preservation Task Force, which was organized by Governor George Voinovich.

Here are some of Prindle's findings:

- Ohio's population equaled 11.2 million in 1995. That will increase 5.4 percent by 2015.
- For every 1 percent increase in population, urban land use increased 4.7 percent from 1960 to 1990.
- During 1982-1992, land used for farming decreased 120,000 acres a year, or 7.5 percent.
- The highest population growth in counties surrounding metro areas, while population is on a decline or slow growth in the center cities.

"This kind of rapid growth creates problems," Prindle said. "Low density suburban developments have their own problems. People have to build new infrastructures and schools and provide community needs and services. Meanwhile, you can't neglect the rural and urban areas that are being abandoned, either."

Plus, for every one acre of prime farmland that converts to suburban or residential use, that acre is not being used for food production, Prindle said. The community loses income from that, even though people tend to believe that the new commercial venture is replacing nothing. Farmland is not being valued.

"From a global perspective, there's a limited amount of land on Earth," Prindle said. "From a state's perspective, there is a perception that there's land in Iowa, so it doesn't matter if there's a loss of Ohio farmland." More than 50 percent of Ohio's land is prime farmland. Many of those acres are also in areas subject to the urban impact.

One reason for the expansion is that townships have control of land use decisions, said Jeff Winegard, general counsel for the American Farmland Trust.

Although this arrangement provides a lot of local control on how land is developed, it can be detrimental for protecting farmland, Winegard said. If adjoining townships' development plans are at odds with one another, it doesn't make for rational land use decisions.

Winegard has been involved with land use planning in Michigan, including a task force organized by the state. Several of the recommendations that resulted from the Michigan task force could apply to Ohio, he said, including increasing farm profitability, developing urban areas, improving zoning laws and purchasing development rights.

Both Prindle and Winegard will be discussing farm land trends and preservation at the land use conference, which takes place March 25-26 in Columbus. Other topics on the agenda include: Housing and Transportation, Farmland Preservation, Greenways, Urban Sprawl, Agricultural Zoning, Protecting Rural Character, Ohio Planning and Zoning Enabling Legislation, Urban Communities and Watershed Planning.

The meeting will be held at the Columbus Athenaeum, a historical building that was slotted for demolition in 1995 but was saved by an investor concerned about urban preservation.

Registration, which includes meals and handout materials, is $75. Student registration is $30. To register, send a check payable to Ohio State University Extension to OSU Extension, Community Development, Suite 235, 700 Ackerman Road, Columbus, Ohio 43202. Intensive Soil Sampling Critical Step In Tapping Yield Potential

NORCROSS, Ga. — Soil sampling is a confusing matter because there are no standards. Questions center on what type of sampling method to use. There are several methods which a farmer might choose, including grid sampling, sampling by topography, and sampling by soil type.

But which one is right for your situation? Here are a few things to consider when making the choice.

• First, consider the reasons you sample the soil. The primary one is to determine the fertilizer rates appropriate for a field. Correct rates will produce maximum agronomic effectiveness and optimum economic returns to fertilizer applied. Agronomics and economics are not at opposite ends of the spectrum. Instead, they work together to form best management practices (BMPs). At the core of BMPs is a good understanding of the spatial variability of nutrient levels in the field.

• Choosing an appropriate sampling scheme requires knowledge of the field you are sampling. If you are familiar with the field, you probably already have some knowledge about which areas are higher yielding and which are lower yielding. You may also know that one part of the field used to be a feedlot, or another area was once made up of smaller fields. Such knowledge is the starting point for selecting how you will sample the field. If you know parts of the field have different histories, then sample these areas separately. The key is not to gloss over known sources of nutrient variability, regardless of the soil sampling scheme you choose. Neglecting to sample variable areas will result in over or under fertilization, both of which reduce income and net returns and can have negative impact on the environment.

• A few soil sampling "rules of thumb" are beginning to emerge from research. The appropriate sampling scheme, as discussed above, is based upon knowledge of the field. If the field has not been part of a regular soil testing and fertilization program, there is a good chance that the variability in that field will be due to natural variables, such as topography, vegetation, parent material, and climate. When nature is the source of variability, sampling by soil type or topography may be more appropriate. If the field in question has variability that traces back to management practices, such as manure, lime, and fertilizer applications, sampling by grid may be more appropriate. In addition, if mobile nutrients are of interest, such as nitrate and chloride, sampling by topography may be the best way. If immobile nutrients such as phosphorus, potassium, calcium, and magnesium are the primary interest, grid sampling may be better.

• Once you have selected a sampling scheme, don't feel "locked-in." If you have selected a grid sampling plan, that doesn't mean you can't augment those samples with some additional samples taken where known variability exists. The objective in sampling is to get the best idea of the nutrient variability in the field. To accomplish this, different sampling schemes may need to be mixed and matched.

• The end result should be successfully identifying yield-limiting areas in the field. Unless more intensive, knowledge-driven sampling is used, field areas with lower nutrient levels may be missed. Overlooking these areas results in lower soil productivity, lower yields, and reduced profits.

World Demand Growth Pushes Ag Research Priorities

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The world will need to increase agricultural productivity by 90 percent in the beginning of the next century, but will have only 10 percent more acreage available to do it. Dr. Robert L. Thompson told the Senate Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry Committe. He also confirmed that the United States will need to increase productivity on current acreage threefold in the next 50 years.

Thompson said the increased demand will come from population growth, but more importantly, income growth in developing countries.

"The U.S. market for agricultural products is mature and growing very slowly. The only outlet for the products of U.S. agriculture with rapid growth potential is the export market, and the greatest potential for growth in demand for food is in low income countries which experience broad-based economic growth that empowers millions of poor people with the wherewithal to upgrade their diets by eating more animal protein, fruits, vegetables and edible oils. The key factors that will determine the future size of U.S. agriculture and agribusiness are the future size of the world market and the competitive position of the U.S. food and agricultural sectors to capture a significant share of the growth in that market," said Thompson, President and CEO of Winrock International and former Purdue University dean of agriculture.

Increasing wealth and purchasing power in most rural poor countries depends on increasing rural wealth through better farming practices. This will call for coordinated international research and a U.S. policy of developing new markets.

"A recent study by the International Food Policy Research Institute showed that each dollar of additional agricultural output in low income countries results in 73 cents more in total imports, of which 17 cents worth is additional agricultural imports," Thompson said.

Thompson warned that the U.S. "must play (a leadership role) in getting economic growth moving in low income countries, and given the high payoff to American farmers from these investments in low income countries, agriculture's role in U.S. foreign aid must be restored."

Preseason Maintenance Can Increase Planting Success

MOLINE, Illinois — A few hours of preseason inspection and maintenance of air seeding equipment can pay big dividends by preventing planting delays this spring and reduced yields this fall.

"Seed placement is a critical step toward ensuring the best possible yield at harvest. Investing a few hours in preseason maintenance can assure your air seeding equipment will properly place the seed to maximize yield potential. Careful maintenance can also assure maximum performance of your air seeder and minimize chances of costly breakdowns," says Larry Green, marketing representative for the John Deere Seeding Division.

"The most important preseason step is to check the hoses on the air seeder for blockages by blowing seed through them," Green says. "You can't assume the hoses are not blocked even though you might have inspected them last fall."

Operators also should lubricate the meter drive chain on the seed cart at the end of the season and before using the air seeder in the spring. John Deere recommends using its multipurpose spray lubricant rather than conventional lube on chains. A lighter consistency enables the spray to penetrate and lubricate chains without attracting a buildup of dust and dirt that can affect chain life and seed meter performance.

The seed cart also should be thoroughly cleaned to ensure proper seed flow through the metering system.

"If there was any seed or paper left in the cart from last year, it probably has crusted at the bottom of the tank. It also may have attracted birds, rodents or other small animals, especially if the lid was not properly closed. All of these can block the flow of seed to the hoses," Green observes.

Tire pressure is another important preseason check, as tires tend to lose air pressure over winter, even though they may look fully inflated. Under-inflated tires could lead to improper metering rates and seed placement, or cause a lengthy delay in planting if a tire goes flat in the field.

Bolts, nuts, and hose clamps should be carefully inspected and missing or damaged parts should be replaced to assure operating efficiency and safety. Ground-engaging tools should be inspected for wear and replaced, if necessary.

"It takes some time to go over every part of an air seeder, checking every piece of hardware, and tightening every bolt and hose clamp. But it's time well spent, if it prevents a breakdown or a costly delay," Green adds.

Farmers also should properly lubricate the air seeder and perform other maintenance checks outline in the maintenance recommendations in the operator's manual. They should take the time to review the safety recommendations that are spelled out in the manual, too.

"Producers often race against the weather to get their crop planted. Air seeders fill that need well because they cover more ground more quickly than other types of planting equipment," says Green. "However, one area where you should never race is the inspection and maintenance of your machinery."

New Employee At Farm Credit

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — Northeastern Farm Credit, ACA, has welcomed a new employee to its Wellsboro staff.

She is originally from Jim Thorpe but most recently has relocated from Nesquehoning, to Tioga Township. Owens, a graduate of Paralegal Institute in Boca Raton, Fla., had worked for 10 years at Pro-Search, Inc., a title insurance company headquartered in Allentown, as an assistant manager.

FFA Record Keeping Contest

Northeastern Farm Credit, ACA, recently presented awards to the winners of the FFA Record Keeping Contest for Northern Potter High School. David Morris, loan officer for the Coudersport branch of Northeastern Farm Credit, presented the awards for the evening.

Preston Hoopes, a senior, received the regional award and a check. Patrick Hoopes, a sophomore, received the county award and a check. Preston and Patrick are brothers. They are the sons of Jim and Sandy Hoopes of Ulysses. The Hoopes operate a farm and crop operation which has inspired their sons to follow in their footsteps.

Agricultural students are required to maintain record books on a project of their choice. This project could be a crop or animal, a job, a home improvement project, a research project, a wildlife conservation project or a skills development project. All types of record books require students to have a signed agreement, keep a record of income and expenses and diary of labor performed. At the end of the year, the students summarize and analyze their records.

Record books are entered in the state contest after they have been scored in a county or chapter contest. Only the top books reach the state competition. At the state contest, books are scored for their completeness and accuracy as well as neatness. After all books are scored, the top record book in each county is selected. Eight regional winners are selected from among the county winners and one state winner is selected from the regional winners.

Seed Treatment Provides Improved Pythium Protection

LINCOLN, Neb. — Soybean growers with pythium problems have an even better reason to give NC+'s fungicide soybean seed treatment a try this spring, according to Doug Gloystein, NC+ soybean manager.

NC+ has changed the formulation of Plus-Kote™ to include metalaxyl and the fungicide Rival®, which is produced by Gustafson, Inc.

"The addition of metalaxyl provides Plus-Kote with a stronger defense against pythium — one of the biggest problems faced by soybean growers," said Craig Jakob, product manager for corn and soybeans at Gustafson. "It will provide NC+ growers a big leg up against pythium."

Pythium seedling rot, also known as "damping-off," is most severe in heavy, cold and wet soils with buried crop residue. Infected seeds may not germinate and may be soft and overgrown with other fungi and bacteria. "Pythium infections can occur at any time from seedling stage to the four- to six-leaf stage," said Gloystein.

Plus-Kote also defends soybean seed and seedlings against rhizoctonia as well as seed borne pod and stem blight.

Last year, Dave Kirschner of Pleasanton, Neb., planted 200 irrigated soybean acres with Plus-Kote-treated NC+ 2A42 and 2A91. Planted May 10, these beans yielded about 61 bushels per acre.

"These earlier planted beans had just as good a stand as the beans I planted later," he said. "Sure seemed to me that the seed treatment helped."

It was the third year Kirschner has planted Plus-Kote-treated beans. "I gave them a try because the research showed some advantage," he said. Univeristy research has shown seed treatment can prevent losses caused by poor stands and seedling damage. For every day of delayed emergence caused by poor weather or soil-borne disease, a soybean grower can lose up to ¼ bushel per acre, Gloystein said.

Kirschner said seed treatments like Plus-Kote are especially important to growers planting beans into ground formerly enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program. "There's the potential for a lot of problems in CRP ground. It will take a while for that ground to warm up," he said.

Ivan Rolf of Westphalia, Kan., tried Plus-Kote with NC+ 4A10 soybeans for the first time last year. For the last eight years he has been using a seed box treatment for his 400 soybean acres. He farms a total of 800 acres of corn, soybeans and grain sorghum.

"I wanted to try a coated bean seed for a change," he said. "I thought I would get a more even fungicide distribution. Plus, it's a lot more convenient.

Based on the emergence of his treated beans, Rolf said he's likely to plant more this year. "I liked Plus-Kote really well. The beans looked real healthy," he said.

Farmers Union, Meat Processors Add Support

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "Ohio Farmers Union (OFU) supports the Ohio Department of Agriculture (ODA) in its attempt to enable meatpackers to sell pork, beef, and poultry in other states, following a recent vote taken by the OFU Executive Committee," said a recent press statement by the organization.

"Current policy banning interstate shipment of meats is outdated," said OFU President Charlie Nash. "In this age of international free trade agreements, it's ironic that it's easier to bring meat in from foreign countries than it is to ship state-inspected meat across state lines." Nash said lifting the ban would enhance business for smaller packers and help maintain the number of packers in Ohio.

The American Association of Meat Processors (AAMP) also added their voice to the growing list of supporters of the civil complaint filed against the unfair prohibition. "Most state-inspected plants are small, family run businesses who face unfair competition from USDA-inspected plants who can ship anywhere in the United States and overseas," the organization's newsletter said. "At the same time, plants in foreign countries who must meet the same inspection standards as state-inspected plants are allowed to ship their meat into any part of the U.S."

"We hope the suit will overturn the unfair restraint of trade in Ohio and other states where state inspection exists," AAMP said.

In the complaint filed by Ohio Attorney General Betty D. Montgomery on behalf of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, Fred L. Dailey (Director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture), Blue Chip Meats, Inc., the Herman Falter Packing Co., Gerber Poultry, Inc., and the Ohio Association of Meat Processors against the United States Department of Agriculture and Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman, the plaintiffs asked for injunctive relief as a result of the unfair prohibition against the interstate shipment of state-inspected meat and poultry products. Specifically, the plaintiffs prayed for:

• A declaration that the unfair prohibition against the interstate shipment of state-inspected meat and poultry products, to the extent the prohibition does not allow state-inspected meat and poultry to enter interstate commerce, deprive them of right secured by the Constitution of the United States.

• A permanent injunction barring the defendants from applying the unfair prohibition against the interstate shipment of state-inspected meat and poultry products, to the extent the prohibition does not allow state-inspected meat and poultry to enter interstate commerce.

Perry County Angus Bulls Top Performing

LOYSVILLE (Perry Co.) — Meadow Mist Farms consigned 16 seven-month-old registered angus bull calves to Profit Maker Bulls located in Ogalalla, Neb.

These calves were sent to the largest Angus test in the nation in September 1996. More than 700 Angus bulls from all over the U.S. were consigned to this prestigious performance test in order to determine which bulls exhibit the most rapid growth and produce the highest quality beef. All the bulls are fed an average energy ration of hay, silage and grain for a period of 112 days and the rate of growth is determined.

At the end of the test the bulls are examined using ultrasound technology to determine the size of the rib eye muscle, fat cover thickness and amount of intramuscular fat. A complete breeding soundness exam is also done including semen collection. The pelvic area is determined by internal measurement technology and the top 10 percent are scored for conformation by a nationally recognized cattle judge.

The Meadow Mist bulls won the test in all of the above categories, with the top bull bringing $5,000 and the entire group averaging $2,900. The top-selling bull was sired by "Ideal 033" out of a RJ Cruz 2-year-old dam. The highest performing bull brought $4,000 and was an embryo transfer calf sired Meadow Mist 2100 891, owned by Leo Keller, Pierce, Neb. The dam of this bull is a Meadow Mist bred female and is owned by Middlefield Farms, Fort Collins, Colo. This pregnancy was from a frozen embryo collected before the cow was sold to the Heckendorfs in Fort Collins.

The top-selling bull was syndicated to 10 top performance breeders across the nation and the progeny testing will get a jump start.

Meadow Mist has been breeding a small herd of 100 Angus cows for 37 years with total emphasis on performance testing. The performance of MMF bulls at central test stations in the 1980s has become a legend. In the '90s, MMF performance tested the bulls at home and sold them at public auction in conjunction with Weaver Angus, Peoria, Ill. These sales were held in southwest Iowa at Clarinda.

Mounts Receive Outstanding Fruit Grower Award

CLAYTON, N.J. — The 13th Annual Outstanding Fruit Grower Award sponsored by the New Jersey Horticultural Society was presented to Gary and Pam Mount during the South Jersey Fruit Meeting recently. The Mounts are owners and operators of Terhune Orchards in Princeton, N.J.

This is the first time farming partners have been presented the award because they have worked closely together to make Terhune Orchards a production and marketing success. Individually they have made outstanding contributions to their community, agriculture, and the fruit industry.

Gary and Pam Mount bought Terhune Orchards, near Princeton, in 1978. At that time it was a 35-acre farm that has grown to 225 acres with a modern yet rustic farm market, cider mill, packing house and storage, bakery, entertainment zoo, and much more.

The Mounts were recognized for their marketing expertise and innovative promotions, festivals, and tours which now attract more than 400,000 people annually. While Pam is more oriented toward marketing, Gary has developed a diversified high density orchard with more than 30 varieties of apples, 12 varieties of peaches, plus pears, pumpkins and miscellaneous other fruits and vegetables for both U-pick and retail marketing. Apples are also purchased for retail sales and cider.

The Mounts have been innovators in Rutgers Cooperative Extension Integrated Pest Management Program. Their orchard is widely known state wide and is frequently featured on TV, radio, and other forms of news media. They have hosted many public relations tours, media events and legislative outings on their farm.

Terhune Orchards is one of the few farms in the past 40 years that has been bought in urban Mercer County strictly for farmers. The Mounts have been successful enough to be able to place it in the New Jersey Farmland Preservation Program; the first farm selected in the county.

Pam Mount was recognized for her active agricultural and community organizations. She has been a leader in the New Jersey Agricultural Society and helped develop the "Taste Testing" Program for supermarkets, the Agricultural Leadership Development Program and the "Farmers Against Hunger" Program.

Gary has been very active for many years on the New Jersey Horticultural Society, in which he has held all offices. He is the only president of the Society that held three terms. He is a long time director of the International Dwarf Fruit Tree Association and a member of its rootstock research committee; a past director of the International Apple Association, now the U.S. Apple Association; director of the New Jersey Apple Institute. Mr. Mount is a past president of the State Board of Agriculture. He has been a delegate for many years to the State Ag Convention and has been on many committees of all these organizations including the New Jersey Farm Bureau, the Mercer County Board of Agriculture, and the Princeton Agricultural Society.

Gary and Pam have been recognized by numerous marketing organizations. They recently won the Tony Russo Farm Marketing Award from the New Jersey Agricultural Society, and the Conservation Award from the National Resource Conservation Service.

Co-Op Education Conference August 4-7

PITTSBURGH — The largest national educational conference for farmer cooperative leaders and members will be held here August 4-7.

The National Institute on Cooperative Education (NICE) will attract more than a thousand co-op members, professional educators, and youth. Started in 1925, NICE'is the premier annual meeting for co-op directors, managers and supporters to examine current and future trends affecting the success of farmer cooperatives in the United States.

The event is sponsored by the NCFC Education Foundation. The National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC) is the major association of cooperative businesses owned and controlled by American farmers, and includes about 80 major agricultural marketing, supply, and credit co-ops in the United States, plus 31 state councils of cooperatives.

"Cooperation: Keystone of the Future" will be the theme of this year's NICE, which will be held at the Pittsburgh Hilton & Towers. The conference offers special programs geared toward the leadership development needs of young farmers and youth scholars, as well as business symposiums aimed at co-op managers and directors, teachers and professors, and government researchers and extension agents.

The General Adult Program provides cooperative directors, members, and managers an opportunity to learn how cooperatives are working with members to adjust to changes in agriculture resulting from urban encroachment and environmental pressures. Participants also discuss how cooperatives are adding value to members' farming operations through innovative services and marketing. Issues are discussed in a wide range of venues including general session presentations, small group symposiums, and open forums.

The Education Professional Program allows teachers, college professors, government researchers, extension agents, and others to gain a better understanding of cooperatives as well as learn about cooperative education and development resources.

The Young Cooperator Leadership Program offers young farm couples and singles an opportunity to expand their horizons by gaining a national perspective on agriculture and cooperatives while sharing experiences with their peers. It's designed to provide leadership development and reinforce an understanding of cooperative basics and values.

The Youth Scholar Program provides youth from across the country an opportunity to learn more about cooperatives, agriculture, and business in a fun-filled, educational experience. The long-term goal of the youth program is to develop an understanding and support of cooperatives with the leaders of the future.

Awards are presented during NICE to outstanding high school, college and graduate students for academic work relating to cooperatives. Competitions are also held to select a young farmer couple or single and two youth scholars to represent NCFC for the next year as ambassadors in the agricultural community.

For program details or registration materials for the 1997 NICE in Pittsburgh, call NCFC's Jim Smith at (202) 626-8700 or e-mail him at jsmith@ncfc.org. NCFC's mailing address is 50 F St. NW, Suite 900, Washington, DC, 20001.

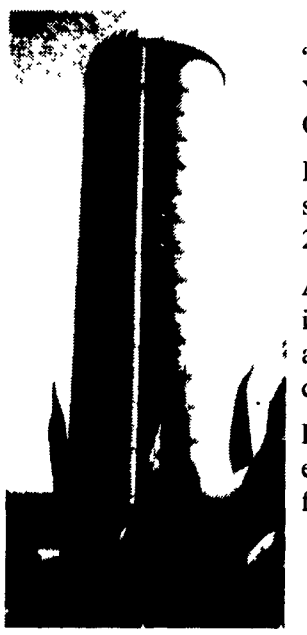
THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!



"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

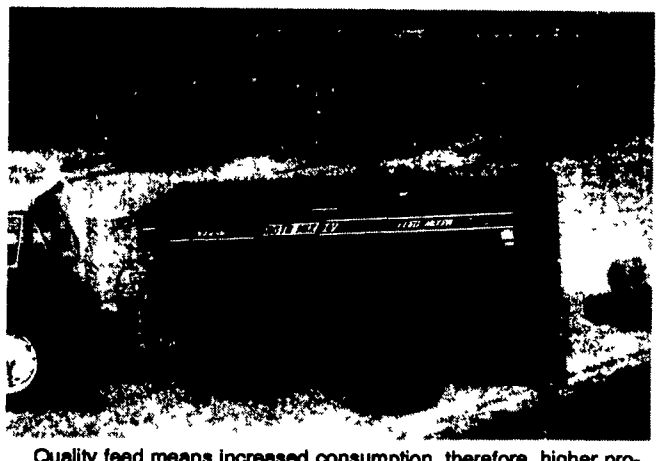
ROTO-MIX FEED MIXERS



Quality feed means increased consumption, therefore, higher production levels. With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots. The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration.

The ROTO-MIX patented mixing system uses a rotor to gently lifts the feed past the wedging point of the lower side auger, keeping fines to a minimum and reducing nutritional loss.

The ROTO-MIX end-to-end... side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat.

Check all the ROTO-MIX advantages... the bottom line is what counts.

76 Cow Total Ventilation System - Denver, PA

Lapp's Barn Equipment can install a high-performance/high efficiency tunnel ventilation system in your barn. A tunnel ventilation system will give you an even air flow throughout your barn of 2-5 mph. This gives you the advantage of better controlling temperature to give your cows more comfort which means more milk!! Also, a tunnel ventilation system eliminates circulating fans, provides summer and winter ventilation and controls fly problems! An optional unit can even automate your ventilation so you will never even have to worry about it when you're not there, so you can concentrate on other things!

At Lapp's, we sell high quality ventilation systems manufactured by Acme Engineering, Acme products feature such things as:

- Galvanized Construction
- Wide Cambered Propeller
- Rivited Blades
- Unique Captured Bearings
- Vertical Support Frame
- Screens Pre-cut
- Totally Enclosed Motors
- Optional Discharge Diffuser Cone
- Optional Belt Tightener

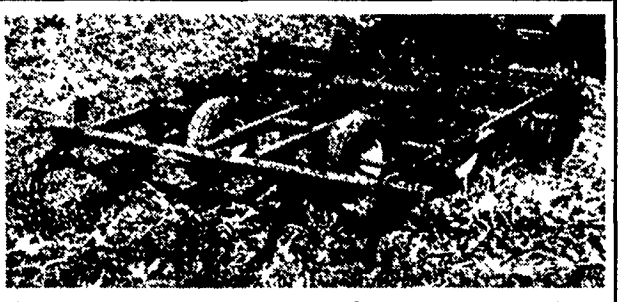
Brillion

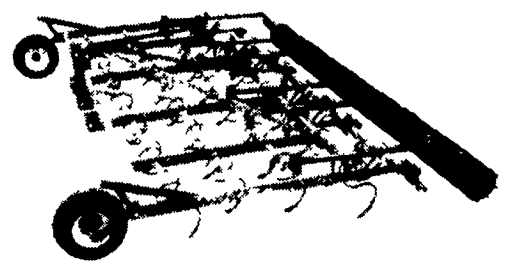
The "Quality Crafted" Line Better Seedbeds... Better Stands!

SOIL BUILDERS
5-7-9-11-13 Shanks



SOIL BUILDERS. Optional - Coulter gang can be hydraulically controlled to save maintenance dollars. Available in 2 & 3 bar.

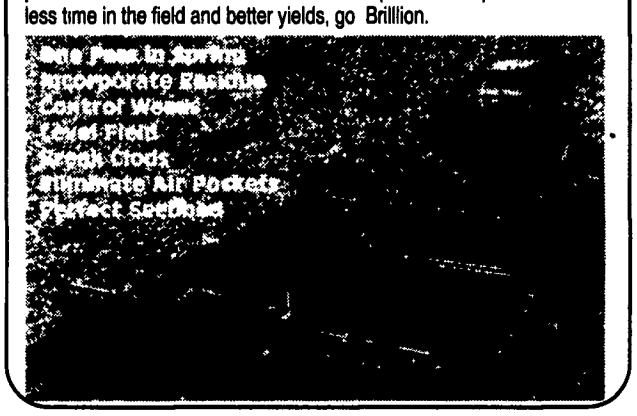
3 PT. BASKET HARROWS
12 Ft., 15 Ft., 18 Ft.



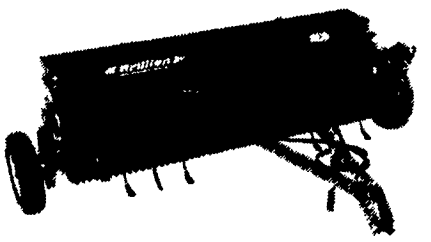
Brillion has designed a 3 pt. S-Tine field cultivator with a larger, aggressively angled 12" diameter rolling basket, a 4-bar frame that allows for either 4" or 6" tooth spacing and an adjustable coil tine leveler bar. Gauge wheels are optional.

BRILLION COMMANDER SYSTEM

Versatile tillage tools such as Billion's Soil Commander allows the use of Chisel Shanks or Deep-ripper Shanks to break up soil compaction. Front disk gangs and optional rear leveling disks cut residue, breaks clods, level the field and prepare the field to absorb moisture from melting snow and to reduce soil erosion Brillion's Field Commander combined with a Brillion Pulverizer excels at creating the perfect seedbed for spring planting. C-Shanks or S-Tine Shanks leave a uniform mixture of soil and surface residue for the most effecient chemical incorporation. The X-Fold Pulverizer (shown below) breaks up clods, firms the soil without compacting, eliminates air pockets in the soil and levels the soil for optimal seed placement. For less time in the field and better yields, go Brillion.



AG SURE STAND SEEDERS
5 Ft.-8 Ft.-10 Ft.-12 Ft.

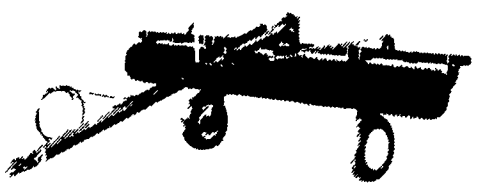


For years Brillion Grass Seeders have proven to be the best machine for plantinggrasses and legumes... and now they're even better! Larger, heavier boxes, high seeding rates, nylon lined seed meter, heavier frame, new drive system and more. Available In 3-point or pull type. SSPT604, SS8, SS10, SS12

LANDCOMMANDERS
3-5-7-9-11-13 Shanks

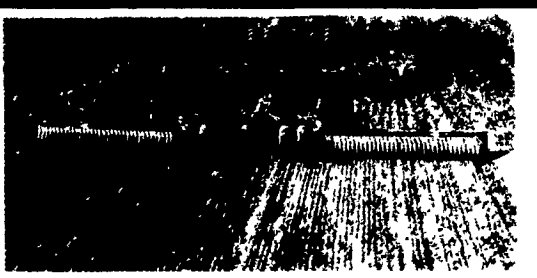
The front disc gang has 22" x 1/4" disc blades on 15" spacings. They are designed to cut residue and work the ground to a depth of 6". The Landcommander has the ability to till from 8" to 20" deep. The rear disc gang has 20" x 7 ga. disc blades on 7.5 spacing. The 6"x4" mainframe is designed to handle the stress from the deep till shanks and disc gangs.

P-SERIES TRANSPORT PULVERIZERS
10 Ft. to 20 Ft.



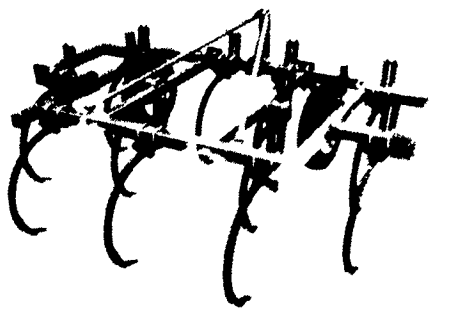
Rotary Frame Pulverizers; PT10 Series Transport Concept. Machine weight is hydraulically rotated over the wheels for transport. This reduces draw bar hitch weight considerably and provides ample clearance for transport. Also Available As Pull Type.

X-FOLD PULVERIZERS
19 Ft. to 46 Ft.



The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers...and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 46'. Available with 20" Ductile Rollers.

2 or 3 BAR CHISEL PLOWS
5-7-9-11 or 10-12-14-16 Shanks



The CPP series of mounted models enables you to turn short and fast... to transport easily, utilizing your tractor's hydraulic system.

M-MD PULVI-MULCHERS

The Brillion Pulvi-Mulcher converts fall or spring plowing into clod-free, high yield seedbeds. Just flick the tractor hydraulic control, pulvi-mulcher lifts to transport wheels.

ML SERIES PULVI-MULCHERS
12'6", 13'10", 15'2", 18'9"

- Easy rolling 20" ductile iron notched or crowfoot roller wheels with 5 year limited warranty.
- Longer life external mounted bearings.
- Longer, heavier drawbar for shorter turns.

COMPACTION COMMANDERS
NO-TILL RIPPER/DEEP RIPPER - 3-5-7 Shanks

Brillion introduces their new Compaction Commander... designed to break up hard-pan and compaction as deep as 20". The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance. Auto-rest shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil. 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy residue.

Ohio State Develops Test For Fighting White Mold

WOOSTER, Ohio — Sclerotinia stem rot may be the No. 2 soybean disease in Ohio, but that might not be the case for too long.

Plant pathologists at Ohio State University have developed a laboratory procedure to identify varieties that do a good job of withstanding the disease. Plant breeders will be able to use that information to develop varieties that give farmers a fighting chance in controlling sclerotinia.

Ohio farmers would welcome the development of tolerant varieties because they incur $26 million in annual losses to sclerotinia, more commonly known as white mold. The disease is second to phytophthora root rot in cutting soybean yields.

A senior researcher at Ohio State University's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center in Wooster, Art Olah, said the test is a two-week procedure that infects plants in order to determine their reactions to the disease. A researcher implants an infected wheat seed in a 10-day-old soybean cotyledon, and then puts it in a chamber that produces 100 percent humidity.

The chamber's environment replicates the incubation process that occurs in farmers' fields, Olah said. Cold, humid nights during the plant's flowering stage are the best conditions for spreading the disease, he said.

After 24 hours, the scientist removes the plants from the chamber to see the effects of the disease. Less-tolerant plants turn brown, wither up and die, while tolerant ones remain healthy.

Although the test fills some gaps in knowledge, it doesn't answer everything scientists want to know, Olah said. For example, it does not identify which varieties still get good yields in spite of infection. To study that, scientists would have to get yield data from field trials.

However, field research can have setbacks that don't get the answers that easily, Olah said. Scientists are at the mercy of the weather for sclerotinia to appear.

"If the weather conditions are not right for the disease, there would be no disease problem in the field," Olah said. "Then we wouldn't know if the plants were resistant," he said.

Identification of varieties' tolerances will be a good tool for plant breeders when they try to develop new seed lines. Two university plant breeders, Steve St. Martin and Ron Fioritto are doing exactly that, thanks to the lab test data. It generally takes about three to five years for breeders to come up with varieties that do a good job against sclerotinia, Olah said.

Olah said he has already subjected more than 60 soybean varieties to the test. In addition, the research center is using the test on 7,000 Chinese soybean varieties from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Plant Introduction Center. Cooperating Midwestern universities will use the data to identify promising varieties to test in the field.

"Who knows? We might find a variety totally resistant in this material," Olah said.

Sclerotinia outbreaks are not widespread across the state even in severe years. The disease appears in a spotty fashion in individual fields. What makes it tough to control is that there are no resistant varieties, and chemical treatments are too expensive to be economical.

Furthermore, modern cultural practices that otherwise increase yields also create conditions ripe for a sclerotinia outbreak, Olah said. For example, farmers have been reducing soybean row widths in the past decades so plant foliage will cover rows quicker for better weed control. However, those conditions also create a humid greenhouse effect that helps spread the disease, he said.

Olah said the ongoing research with other Midwestern universities is looking at the relationship of sclerotinia infection to row widths, no-till practices, rotational practices and levels of crop residues left on field surfaces.

"We know it is a lot more complicated than we originally thought," Olah said. "Our whole goal is to get away from chemicals to control it. If we can find cultural practices and varieties that are resistant, that'll be great."

Sclerotinia appears as a white, cotton-like substance on the soybean stem. The fungi overwinter in black, protective bodies called sclerotia. During the high humidity of the growing season, germinating sclerotia emit spores, which can cause infection if the plant is flowering. Spores feed on the petals, and that sets the infection process in motion.

Olah said scientists aren't sure why some varieties seem to be more tolerant of sclerotinia than others. However, several factors can promote its spread. Weakened stems may cause the plant to fall over and infect nearby rows. Or, sclerotia may become mixed with seed that farmers hold for the next year's planting. In the latter case, farmers should make sure they only plant clean seed.

Three soybean industry organizations helped to fund this project. They are the Ohio Soybean Council, Ohio Seed Improvement Association and the North Central Soybean Research Program. The project received funds collected from farmers through the soybean checkoff program.

FACTS ABOUT NECROTIC ENTERITIS OF CHICKENS

Patty Dunn, DVM
Animal Diagnostic Laboratory
Penn State

Necrotic enteritis (NE) is a disease of chickens seen with significant frequency throughout our region. It is primarily a disease of young growing meat-type chickens (broilers and roasters) between 2-8 weeks of age.

The condition is quite rare in layer type chickens, particularly those grown in cages. NE as a specific disease entity was first described and experimentally reproduced by W. E. Parish in 1961. It has since been diagnosed in poultry-raising areas throughout the world.

NE was quite prevalent in most broiler-producing areas of the U.S. between 1966 and 1977. A decreased incidence of the condition was apparent after 1972 following the introduction of effective anticoccidial drugs, particularly those in the ionophore class, used in the feed for prevention of coccidiosis.

The incidence of NE remained fairly static for approximately two decades, but indications are that the disease has become a more common problem in the last 4 or 5 years in some Pennsylvania flocks.

The direct cause of necrotic enteritis is abnormal overgrowth in the small intestine of a large, rod-shaped, gram positive, spore-forming, anaerobic bacterium called Clostridium Perfringens. C. Perfringens can be found in the environment, soil, feces, and contaminated feed and litter, generally in low numbers. In fact, small numbers of C. Perfringens can be found passing through the small intestines and cecae of normal chickens. While small numbers are often harmless, larger numbers of these bacteria colonize the intestine and cause disease.

Types A and C C. Perfringens elaborate a potent toxin that causes severe damage and death (necrosis) of living tissue — in this case the delicate lining of the intestinal tract through which absorption of water and nutrients occurs. Although C. Perfringens is the direct cause of NE, its abnormal overgrowth resulting in disease generally only occurs when a complex set of factors and events come together to favor this event.

One predisposing factor is the presence of microbial infectious disease of the gastrointestinal tract that causes inflammation and damage to the intestinal mucosa. The most common of these in young broilers is coccidiosis. Mid-small intestinal forms of coccidiosis, such as infection by Eimeria Maxima, can cause significant inflammation which in turn alters the intestinal microenvironment and causes a shift in the normal gut flora favoring the overgrowth of C. Perfringens.

The type of ration can influence C. Perfringens growth in the intestinal tract. High levels of dietary wheat, rye, or barley or fish meal are known to predispose chickens to develop NE. Any factor that interferes with normal intestinal distension or motility may also be a predisposing factor. Normal intestinal motility, known as "peristalsis," is accomplished by coordinated and sequential smooth muscle contractions in the wall of the small intestine. These contractions move the partially digested feed and forming feces through the tract and help eliminate potentially damaging contents (pathogenic bacteria, toxins, etc.) out of the body in the feces.

Factors such as enteritis (intestinal inflammation of many causes including coccidiosis mentioned previously), abnormally "bulky" feeds that include higher percentages of indigestible components, and irregular feeding schedules (for example, running out of feed, then allowing hungry birds to overeat) can all cause abnormal distension and/or gut stasis allowing C. Perfringens to overgrow.

Another predisposing factor is immunosuppression. As with most other diseases, birds that are immunosuppressed for any reason, including infectious bursal disease, chicken infectious anemia, etc., are more susceptible to clostridial diseases than those with uncompromised immunity. Finally, an uncommon (but possible) initiating cause of NE is contamination of feed, litter, or environment with high numbers of C. Perfringens, resulting in the ingestion of large doses of the causative organism.

A broiler flock affected by NE may show few clinical signs other than sudden death. Dead chickens are generally found lying on their sides or on their sternum, often with legs outstretched behind the body. In most cases, some birds with typical clinical signs can be seen. Very depressed birds that don't move away when disturbed are often noticed. Decreased appetite, increased thirst, and fluid droppings are other symptoms associated with NE.

The percentage of birds affected in a flock is highly variable, but most of the affected birds will die if not treated in the very early stages of disease. In a necrotic enteritis outbreak, mortality can exceed 20-30 percent, but prompt treatment intervention may limit mortality to less than 2 percent.

The time course of the disease can also be greatly influenced by early medication. Untreated outbreaks can last several weeks, sometimes until the end of grow-out, while treated disease can be stopped in one or two days. Unfortunately, treated and recovered flocks may experience a reoccurrence of NE within the same grow-out once treatment is ceased, especially in immunosuppressed flocks.

Once one is familiar with the gross lesions produced by NE, the classic condition is relatively easy to diagnose by post-mortem exam. As the name implies, the hallmark lesion is extensive diffuse necrosis of the lining of the small intestine. Usually the middle portion (jejunum) is affected, but the duodenum and/or ileum may also be involved. The intestines may appear distended and gas-filled. The intestinal lining often appears very thickened, roughened, and fissured with a tan yellow pseudomembrane. The appearance is described as resembling the texture of a "dirty Turkish towel." Dark or bile-stained areas of the lining may be present. Other gross lesions in this condition include signs of dehydration (dry, tacky, dark subcutaneous tissues, and musculature; increased urates in ureters; and pale kidneys); water-filled crop (from increased thirst of dehydrated bird or crop stasis); and dark, congested liver. Carcasses may appear to have accelerated post-mortem decomposition (that is, they "rot" fast).

If the condition is diagnosed at a diagnostic laboratory, the pathologist will often examine intestinal scrapings and fixed sections of intestine microscopically to confirm the diagnosis and rule in or rule out the presence of concurrent coccidiosis or other enteric pathology. In the microscopic examination of fixed tissue, extensive coagulation necrosis of the intestinal lining associated with colonization by large numbers of large bacterial rods will confirm the

Experiments Uncover A Natural Answer To Odor Management

DEKALB, Ill. — Livestock operations of all sizes have at least one common problem — handling the odors caused by stored animal waste.

With more and more people populating rural areas, the need for cleaner air becomes even more urgent.

One of the latest attempts to manage odors of stored livestock manure is the use of natural biological covers. Recent experiments by A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. have shown that blankets of biological material floating on top of hog manure can noticeably help manage the escape of odorous gases that are produced within liquid manure storage areas.

More than 20 years of experience has shown that when fiber is added to the diet of dairy cows, or adequate amounts of bedding are included in the manure, a biocover can often form naturally, when the nondiluted slurry is stored in a relatively small surface area such as in a Slurrystore structure.

Recently, several full-scale demonstrations on large hog farms were conducted to measure the effectiveness of adding to the top surface, 4-inch to 8-inch thick wheat, oat or barley straw "biocovers" on Slurrystore structures.

A commercially available straw chopper was used in the spring of the year to blow the biocover straw into the structure. The results were noticeable. The demonstration biocovers remained floating throughout a six-month fill cycle and maintained their effectiveness. The addition of these biocovers actually reduced the amount of odorous gases that were released into the surrounding air.

Dr. Dwaine Bundy, professor of agricultural engineering at Iowa State University, and a specialist in odor control research, said olfactometer readings in various biocover studies provide positive results. Bundy confirms that the straw biocovers he observed and measured on some of the Slurrystone structures during demonstrations in 1995 showed significant odor reduction. Of course, any research cited in these studies may have been performed under conditions not typically found on any particular farm. Bundy also believes odor management is more critical now than ever before because today's bigger operations may pose bigger odor problems. Furthermore, Bundy feels that "people are not as tolerant to odors today," and biocovers have proven to be very effective in managing them.

Randy Cady of Cady, Inc., Tampico, Ill., has also seen, heard, and smelled the good results. Cady often conducts tours of facilities that use biocovers and frequently hears positive remarks from tour participants regarding the odor level.

Ongoing studies are under way to refine the efficiency and economics of applying biocovers to storage tanks like the Slurrystore structure. Specific issues currently under observation include thickness of the biocover and effectiveness against high winds. Varying levels of biocover thickness are being evaluated to pinpoint the most effective blanketing without "sinking." Though the matter is still in research, Bundy figures an effective biocover measures "closer to six or eight inches thick." Animal diet can have a positive or negative impact on the formation of a biocover. And, whereas high winds have a tendency to create holes in certain biocovers and certain manure storage profiles, he says the problem is reduced in a round storage tank built with high side walls.

Estimated costs for applying a straw biocover to an 81-foot diameter round structure include about $400 for materials and another $250 for rental of application equipment. This initial investment goes a long way to provide a convenient, economical, natural solution to the growing challenge of odor management. While no system can completely eliminate all odors during storage, biocovers can provide a means to help you effectively manage odors.

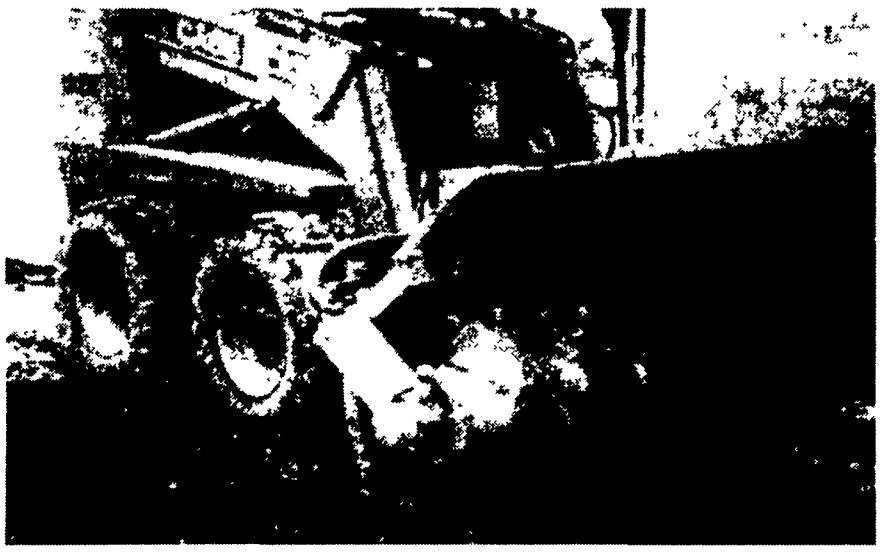
FLY & ODOR CONTROL



BIG PERFORMANCE...SMALL PRICE

SIMPLE PROCEDURE: the aerator works directly into the bed of material, forming its own windrow. Windrows can be formed from piles of nearly any size. Alleyways are not required when using the Brown aerator, so there is a great reduction in space requirements. The aerator's reverse rotation works the material from the bottom up and to the side, assuring complete mixing and agitation. LOW MAINTENANCE: the aerator is a simple design, the principle as a material mover has been proven with over 30 years experience in practical application. The aerator is hydraulically driven and equipped with patented wearplates or paddles, both of which are easily replaced.

diagnosis of NE. Generally it is not necessary to also culture and isolate C. Perfringens, but this can be done for additional confirmation and characterization.

Medication during outbreaks is accomplished through the use of antibiotics with good activity against C. Perfringens in the water, feed, or both. Initially, water treatment is preferred as sick birds are off feed but generally are still drinking. Bacitracin, erythromycin, penicillin, and lincomycin are examples of drugs of choice for NE approved for use in broilers.

In some cases, C. Perfringens isolates may be less susceptible to bacitracin or other drugs than in the past. Prompt pickup and disposal of dead and dying birds is also essential in controlling an outbreak and preventing a protracted course of disease.

Preventive measures against NE are aimed at controlling the known predisposing factors for the condition. They include the following: use feed grade antibiotics such as bacitracin, virginiamycin, or lincomycin to promote a balanced gut flora. Implement a sound coccidiosis control program by using effective preventive anticoccidial drugs and controlling litter moisture.

Limit build-up of clostridial organisms in the environment by picking up dead birds promptly, thorough cleaning and disinfection between flocks and using fresh, clean uncontaminated litter and feed. Limit the use of feed ingredients known to enhance Clostridium Perfringens overgrowth such as fish meal and certain cereal grains (wheat, rye, barley). Keep feeding schedules regular and avoid running out of feed or pulse feeding.

As mentioned previously, there are some indications that NE has become a more prevalent problem in our region in recent years. Several situations that I speculate are contributing to this apparent increase are the following in no particular order of importance:

• Inadequate coccidiosis control, especially for Eimeria Maxima. This may be related to strains of E. Maxima and other small intestinal coccidia that are not being well controlled by the anticoccidial drugs in use. Inadequate litter moisture control may also be involved.

• Increased raising of "natural" or "organic" broilers. In these situations, anticoccidial drugs and feed grade antibiotics are not used, thereby eliminating two important points of control for NE. Although coccidia vaccines are often used in these programs, these vaccines actually induce subclinical coccidiosis before the birds develop immunity against coccidia. At the same time, the birds do not have feed grade antibiotics to help balance the "normal" intestinal flora during this time of stress. This "one-two punch" sets up conditions ideal for intestinal clostridial overgrowth and the development of NE. If allowed in these programs, judicious and strategically timed use of water medications against coccidia and C. Perfringens can help prevent excessive bird losses.

• Possible developing resistance of strains of C. Perfringens to common feed-grade antibiotics such as bacitracin.

• Inadequate control of immunosuppressive diseases such as infectious bursal disease or chicken infectious anemia in some flocks.

In summary, necrotic enteritis will likely never be eliminated as a disease of young broilers, but it can be successfully controlled. Knowledge of and attention to possible risk factors can go a long way in preventing significant economic losses because of NE. In addition, most of the control factors for NE, especially those related to sanitation and coccidiosis control, also tend to decrease the likelihood of other disease conditions that may arise. They promote better bird performance including optimal feed conversion. In the case of necrotic enteritis, as well as many other broiler disease conditions, prevention and early intervention are the keys to successful disease avoidance.

New Leaders of American-International Charolais Association Named

DENVER, Colo. — Mitch Thomas, Raymondville, Texas, was elected president of the American-International Charolais Association (AICA) for 1997-1998. Thomas, who served as vice president for a year, took over the post at the conclusion of the AICA Annual Membership Meeting held Jan. 17, in Denver, Colo.

Thomas replaces William Martin, Fallston, N.C., who will now serve as ex-officio of the board of directors. Other members named to the executive committee included Jerry D. Vaughan, Derby, Kan., vice president; Randy Perry, Clovis, Calif., secretary; and Richard Clark, Tazewell, Tenn., treasurer.

Board elections occurred in 1997 for the even director areas of the 16 AICA membership areas. The following people were elected by their area membership to serve on the AICA board of directors for the 1997-1998 term: Randy Perry, Clovis, Calif., area 2; Dave Hebbert, Hyannis, Neb., area 4; M.L. Snow, Pilot Point, Texas, area 6; J.O. "Bo" Creighton, Paris, Texas, area 8; Dick Fanning, Carthage, Mo., area 10; Paul Rawlins, Danville, Ind., area 12; J. Robert Tibbs, Havre de Grace, Md., area 14, and J. Corbitt Kelly, Monticello, Ga., area 16. Due to Mitch Thomas' designation of AICA Board President, his director seat for area 7 is now served by Jim Berger, Houston, Texas.

Members of the 1997-1998 AICA board of directors will serve their term assisting in making decisions relating to the operation of AICA, providing advice and counsel to officers and other board members, and performing such duties as may be assigned by decision of the board.

New CRP Rules Protect Environment

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The U.S. Department of Agriculture's new rules usher the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) out of the era of production controls and into an age of environmental protection, said two Ohio State University agricultural economists.

"It was clear from public debate during the last few years that CRP was going to become more environmentally oriented, and that has happened," said Carl Zulauf. "It has become more of an environmental program and less of a farm program."

In the process, USDA could be laying the groundwork to use the CRP for a broader, future agenda, perhaps making it a vehicle for farmland preservation, Zulauf said.

"Farmland protection has an environmental component to it, and that could some day come under the banner of the CRP," Zulauf said.

CRP enrollment is ongoing through March 28. USDA's new rules announced in mid-February cover a broad range of environmental issues. These include protection of highly erodible lands, wetland and wildlife habitat conservation, and water and air quality enhancement. Farmers can enroll eligible lands by contacting their local Farm Services Agency office through the end of this month.

Fellow ag economist Allan Lines said the air quality provisions refer to effects of wind erosion upon urban areas. Cities in the northwestern United States benefited when the old CRP cut down the amount of airborne soil pollution from nearby wheat growing areas, he said.

The program also establishes four national priority areas, which are the Great Lakes, Chesapeake Bay, Long Island Sound, and the Prairie Pothole region of the northern plains. Northern Ohio counties are included in the Great Lakes area.

CRP's environment focus is a big change from the mid-1980s when the program was conceived as a way to boost crop prices by paying farmers to idle their cropland. Crop prices have since improved, and the most recent farm bill eliminated production controls as a matter of national policy.

Zulauf said CRP's new environmental agenda reflects the American public's willingness to pay higher food prices in exchange for environmental protection.

"The public is willing to pay, but within limits," Zulauf said. "This environmental program and associated regulations does raise the cost of food."

However, to control cost, the program is limited to 36.4 million acres out of an eligible 240 million acres. Also, per-acre CRP payments cannot exceed local rental rates.

"These program parameters result from Congressional debate and administrative rule-making, which combine to act as a market to decide how much people are willing to pay for the environment," Zulauf continued.

To determine which acres to enroll, USDA devised the Environmental Benefits Index (EBI), a numerical indicator that ranks the land on the basis of its environmental value. USDA is going to have to weigh the value of various environmental factors going into the EBI, and then apply it across many different kinds of ecosystems, Lines said.

"There are a lot of unusual quirks about where CRP is going to end up being," Lines said. "The rubber is going to hit the road when we get to the implementation phase."

Although the new CRP is not intended to be an income security program, some farmers will use it that way, the economists said. I may appeal to older or retired farmers who rent out their lands and don't want to deal with the problem of renters who do not make their payments.

"It is fair to say that some farmers will run the CRP as an important income source and thus make it an important part of how they allocate their cropland," Zulauf said.

Local Farm Service Agencies will be conducting the CRP enrollment. Zulauf doesn't think USDA's short notice in announcing the rules was a problem to most farmers and landowners since they were aware of the discussions surrounding the new version. However, it could cause some concern for winter wheat growers who have already planted their crop.

Alfa Laval Agri To Acquire Germania Dairy Automation

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Officials at Alfa Laval Agri, Inc. announced the intent to purchase all issued and outstanding shares of Germania Dairy Automation, Inc., and interests of all members of RoKa Scientific, LLC, Waunakee, Wis.

Germania was founded by its company president Rolf Reisgies in 1973 with the patented invention of the all air-powered arm take-off. Subsequent dairy equipment inventions, including the top outlet barrel claw, back flush and Pro-Time parlor stalls, have helped position Germania as one of the leading parlor automation companies in the U.S., Canada and many international markets.

"We look forward to having Rolf Reisgies and his team join Alfa Laval Agri to provide dairy operators the highest quality, most complete range of milking parlor stalls and automation," said Ludolf Bjelland, president of Alfa Laval Agri, Inc. "Without question, no other supplier can satisfy as many individual milking parlor demands now as we can."

Germania is known for its all stainless steel design, Bjelland said, adding that the products have a reputation as being simple to use and easy to maintain.

Included in the purchase are the Waunakee headquarters, product development and manufacturing facilities of Germania.

"We will continue to manufacture Germania products, as well as support the marketing, sales and new product development at the Waunakee location," said Don Calhoun, Alfa Laval Agri's executive vice president for marketing, research and sourcing.

"We'll also look at ways to expand manufacturing volume through Waunakee. In addition, we look forward to including Germania's product development team with the more than 130-member research and development team Alfa Laval Agri has in place around the world," Calhoun said.

Germania products will be positioned at the top market segment of dairy operations. Reisgies will continue on a full-time basis following the acquisition, and will focus on working with customers and dealers to further enhance the art of milking parlor design and throughout efficiency, according to Calhoun.
